DRESS CITY STREETS

FOR SUMMER SEASON

Department Working All Over City—
Warm Weather Will Permit Oil
Distribution Next Week.

With favorable weather the oiling of the streets will be started by the street department during the latter part of next week. Extensive repairs and improvements have been made on the streets by the department in preparation for the oiling, and if the weather is hot and dry, after next week, the entire oiling work should be completed within a very short time as the work is going to be accelerated this year according to districts.

Trouble has been experienced with the heating tank of the city, on the spur track off North Bluff street. Last week when the oiling was completed there was a quantity of oil left in the tank. This spring the workmen applied steam through the coils to run it off, but the oil was effected in some manner as to make it hard. The oil refused to liquify and it was necessary to cut a hole in one end of the tank to run the semi-fluid out. No one has been able to explain satisfactorily what made the oil so hard, but it would not respond to the heat. If the tank is not cleaned before next week and the oil repaired the heating tank will be done directly in the tank car as the oil is shipped in, as the cars are equipped with steam coils and an attachment is all that is necessary.

Much oil has been paid this year to the proper repairing of the streets before the oiling is started. The patch work has been done with clean gravel stones, which when rolled and oiled will make an excellent wearing surface. After the new surface was used on First ward streets, it was used to rip up one side of South Main street, below the brick paving. The small amount of the surface was "scarified" to remove the bumps and this will be oiled at an early date. North Bluff street, which is a heavily traveled street, is being treated with the same machine this week. With the steam roller pulling the scarifier, great speed is realized, work being done in two days where it formerly took a week's time, without as good results.

An inspection of the asphalt pavements laid last year, with Aztec asphalt, shows that the pavings went through the winter without showing any visible signs of defective quality in workmanship at least. The trust of the asphalt, however, will come when it is hot weather, and as bids are to be asked for this week, a closer watch will be kept on the macadam street on Oakland avenue and Forest Park boulevard the success of the Aztec asphalt on last year's improvements. Jobs will be watched with interest by the property-owners and the city officials. If the Aztec fails to produce the goods and does not show the value expected, a closer bid may be asked for, by the city, only specifying asphalt costing more than Aztec and alleged to be of a better quality.

Improvements are being made in the city by the street department which will be completed within a few days. At the court house park the lawns are being enriched, and flower beds made. The fountain basins and the steel benches will be placed in this park and the others, within a week's time.

LAKOTA "JOLLIES"

THURSDAY EVENING

Clubmen Polishing Up For Their Annual Production Thursday—Local Stars in Evening of Fun.

"Something entirely different" is how members of the Lakota club this year describe their annual theatrical production, which is to be given next Thursday night at the Myers Theatre. And this show will be entirely different from the types presented in former years by the clubmen.

The "Jollies of 1916," upon which they have been rehearsing for the past six or eight weeks, is a combination of the musical comedy and the popular musical comedy. The cast held its first full rehearsal on Friday night. The remaining time will be spent in smoothing up the rough edges, of which there are few, as was seen following the rehearsal Friday night.

A number of clever sketches humorously depicting local and current events will be given and in themselves will be well worth the price of admission. The introduction of the latest song hits, sung by well known young men of the club, will prove a feature, and the big and attractive costumed beauty chorus is expected to be a show in itself. There are a large number of novelty songs on the program also.

Such well known local minstrels as Walter Carle, John Brown, George Sennett, Howard Clithero, Ben Kuhl, Ralph Southerland, Earl Fuzzell and others will be carrying the "heavies" and are expected to decide hit, as is always the case when they appear. "Bob" Dalley, Edward J. Leary, Oscar Hammarlund, Carl Keller and others are scheduled to lead the big chorus in the song hits.

Present indications are that a large house will greet the Lakotas Thursday night. The seat sale will open Friday morning at Caldwell's boot shop.

SPRING MEDICINE

Hood's Sarsaparilla, the Great Blood Purifier, is the Best.

Spring sickness comes in some degree to every man, woman and child in our climate.

It is that run-down condition of the system that results from impure, impoverished, and vitiated blood.

It is marked by loss of appetite and that tired feeling, and in many cases by some form of eruption.

The best way to treat spring sickness is to take Hood's Sarsaparilla. This old reliable family medicine purifies, enriches and revitalizes the blood. It is an all-the-year-round elixir, a tonic, and is absolutely the best spring medicine.

Get your blood in good condition at once—now. Delay may be dangerous. Ask your druggist for Hood's Sarsaparilla, and insist on having it, for nothing else can take its place.

Heart and Home PROBLEMS

—By—
MRS. ELIZABETH THOMPSON
Letters may be addressed to
MRS. THOMPSON
In care of the Gazette.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I am twenty years old. Until about a year ago I kept company with a boy friend who was two years older. We had a very understanding and although we were not to each other on the subject that is all. He has been to my home several times, but when I was away. He has told my mother that he liked me very much. He sent me his picture by my sister-in-law and later I met him and he said that if I did not want the picture I could send it back. He also asked me if I would give him one of mine, but I refused to give it to him. He does not go with any other girl that I know of except an old school chum. The girl is very nice to me and has asked me to her home several times, but I have never gone. I like this boy very much. Do you think that is anything that I can do? Would you invite the other girl and him over to my home one day? You are in the place. Or would you let things go as they are?

MARION EVELYN.
Since the boy has called at your home, sent you his picture, and asked for yours, and has failed in all his efforts to be friendly, it is now our place to show that you are willing. Ask him and the girl to come to your home. I think you were right in keeping his picture but not giving him yours.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I am a girl of sixteen. I belong to a club of boys and girls, and different boys in the club take me out to dances and theaters. Sometimes I go with boys who are not members of the club. My brother objects to this. He says that I will get cheap unless I go with one boy. He means that I should have a "steady." I don't think so.

Marrying a Butterfly

As Ralph Gordon approached his home his step was slow and dispirited. A great depression brooded over his spirit, smothering all his happiness. In his mouth was the taste of ashes. He had been obliged to go to the third floor of the hotel where he had been staying, and eat a poorly cooked meal that had disagreed with him. He had not felt able to get to the dinner. In his ears the words of his mother repeated themselves with irritating persistence: "Ethel is very pretty, and her childishness appeals to you, but she is not a good girl, my boy, the time will come when you will realize that the strenuous needs of life cannot be met by a pretty plumping of a woman who has never been trained to face any responsibility."

He had been angry with his mother and had assured her that he did not want his wife for the work she could do. What was the matter with him, he wondered. Ethel was as pretty as ever, but the charm had gone from all her childish ways. It was possible that I value physical comfort above the uncouthed charm of my wife? he thought. But she was not a try. "She seems to think it is more her responsibility than mine to see that the home is comfortable," she assumed that we are common sufferers and must bear the burden of unworthy servants' force. "You are too, she is so extravagant," he thought, "she is spending every dollar I all."

He thought a moment. "I can give you a amount of toast and tea, and I will make a Welsh rarebit and chocolate." "That will be a fine spread," Ralph had the grace to say as he stooped to kiss her. Then entered the dining room and she pointed with pride to the table. It was cleared. "I washed the dishes, too," she boasted. Ralph took her hands in his and examined them. "I can't see but they are as soft as ever," he chaffed. "I used the dish mop. I can't bear to touch dirty dishes." She made a "Don't spoil your good beginning by any such confession," said Ralph earnestly. "I think it was a very clever idea. Now serving supper. Now we are to plan about our future wedding. Let's plan how you are to learn to cook." Ralph wondered at the sudden lightness of his heart. Would it come out all right after all?

NOT ALL HAPPY
Why do most married women take granted that all single women want to get married, and patronize and tell them that they haven't? Good-bye, they aren't perfectly happy themselves. Why should they assume that everybody else wants to when plenty of them would like to get out if they'd be honest enough to write a letter friend—presumably an unmarried woman. "I have sympathy, not because I'm unmarried—the gods of fact for—but because I recognize the type of man she describes, and know how disappointing her pity and patronage can be. The most married women are like I don't admit, but there are a number of them to justify her resentment."

Why Don't You Get Married?
The other day I heard a married woman say to a bachelor girl, "Why don't you get married, Jane? You're pretty enough. What's the matter with you, anyway?"

The unmitigated smugness of that assumption that marriage is the only livable state and that lack of good looks is the only barrier that could keep a woman out of it fairly took my breath away. Incidentally the woman who perpetrated it is not at all good-looking herself, and is one of the most self-satisfied, restless women I know. She certainly is no advertisement for the married state, and yet she is always asking her bachelor girl friends that complacent question, "Why don't you get married?"

"Yes, Mamma, Like You"
One is reminded of the retort of the future Madame Roland when her mother (whose marriage had been far from successful) urged her to marry, saying, "Tu seras heureuse, ma chère." "Oui, mamma," she replied, "comme toi."

Of course in those days when marriage was almost the only way for a woman to live, there was some reason for that urging, but today—well, one wonders how even a member of the great secret order of married women can have the smugness to assume that there is no happiness for a woman outside of marriage.

Mind you, I'm not crying down the married state. Far be it from me. I am not saying that it is not a happy state and that it is not the only happy state and that all the women outside are not outside simply because they can't find a man to let them in.

Some Bachelor Girls Have Had More
Many of them have had more opportunities to enter than the woman who has found so much happiness in work and love freedom so dearly, that none but the right man could tempt them inside.

There are women who can obtain a measure of happiness in the home, husband and children, even they feel no deep love for the man.

And there are other women so constituted that such a life would be unsatisfying. Neither type has any right to criticize the other.

Household Hints

Helpful Hints.
When ironing use a small piece of cedar to run iron over. It will keep the iron smooth and free from starch.

When baking bread put a small piece of dough in an empty baking powder can; when it is light, bake, and you will have a nice loaf of sandwich bread.

For those who have polished floors, glue pieces of old felt hats on bottoms of chair legs and rockers to keep from scratching floor.

When sweeping down stair steps use a child's broom; it is much easier to get in the corners.

THE TABLE.
Smothered Veal—Put in bottom of baking dish two slices salt pork cut fine, one layer sliced potatoes, a little chopped onion, one layer finely chopped uncooked veal, pepper and salt. Continue until dish is full. Put over the top pieces of butter. Bake forty-five minutes.

Fish Steaks—The steak of any firm white fish may be used for this purpose. Cut into pieces one inch thick and three inches square. Rub the bottom of a small dripping pan with a cut onion and butter it well. Sprinkle the squares lightly with pepper and salt on both sides, lay them in pan and cover with chopped parsley and a little finely minced onion or a few drops of onion juice. Drop on each a small piece of butter, squeeze over them the juice of a lemon and bake twenty minutes, keeping covered half the time. Serve plain.

Chicken Balls—Grind the white meat of a chicken and two medium-sized onions; season with salt and pepper. Mix with one egg and form into balls. Boil one quart of water to which one carrot (cut in small pieces) and sliced onions (three small ones with the skin on) are added. Cook ten minutes. Add the balls to the boiling water. Season to taste and cook half or three-fourths hour.

Dressing for Chicken Salad—Melt one-fourth pound butter; when it is very hot pour it over the beaten yolks of three eggs, beating hard all the time. Season with salt, capers and mustard and beat until very light. Thin with vinegar or lemon juice and let it get cold. Just before mixing with the chicken and celery add beaten whites of the three eggs to the dressing.

National Cake—White part: Cream together one cup sugar and one-half cup butter, then add one-half cup sweet milk, whites of four eggs, one-half cup cornstarch, one cup flour into which has been mixed one teaspoon cream of tartar, one-half teaspoon soda, flavor with lemon, and the blue and red parts use above recipe, using blue and red sugar; omit flavoring in the colored parts. Place the layers: First the red, then the white, last the blue. Bake in moderate oven.

Emergency Fruit Pudding—Take one cup mince meat with one cup (less if you wish a richer pudding) of prepared pancake flour. Add cautiously only enough milk to make a stiff drop batter, which should be put instantly into small greased aluminum cups and steamed twenty to thirty minutes—the longer the better. Cream or any of the usual pump puddings may be served with these little puddings. More time, proportionate to size and thickness, would be needed for a larger pudding.

Chocolate Bread Pudding—Ingredients: One cup bread crumbs, five cups scalded milk, one square chocolate, one-third cup sugar, one-fourth cup boiling water, one egg, one-eighth teaspoon salt, one-half teaspoon vanilla. Add the bread crumbs to the scalded milk and allow them to soak until soft. Add the boiling water to the chocolate, which has been cut in pieces, and gently cook until a smooth paste is formed. Add this to the milk mixture. Beat the egg, add the sugar and salt to it. Add the first mixture to the egg mixture, then add the vanilla and turn into a buttered pudding dish. Bake in a moderate oven twenty minutes. Serve with plain or whipped cream.

Filled Cookies—One cup granulated sugar and one-half cup lard mixed well; one egg and one-half cup sweet milk; dissolve one teaspoon of soda in milk; 3/4 cups flour sifted with two teaspoons cream of tartar. Roll very thin, put filling between two cookies and bake. One and one-half cups ground raisins, three-fourths cup granulated sugar mixed with one tablespoon flour. Cook until it begins to thicken, then cool. These are fine with afternoon teas.

Helpful Hints.
When ironing use a small piece of cedar to run iron over. It will keep the iron smooth and free from starch.

When baking bread put a small piece of dough in an empty baking powder can; when it is light, bake, and you will have a nice loaf of sandwich bread.

For those who have polished floors, glue pieces of old felt hats on bottoms of chair legs and rockers to keep from scratching floor.

When sweeping down stair steps use a child's broom; it is much easier to get in the corners.

THE TABLE.
Smothered Veal—Put in bottom of baking dish two slices salt pork cut fine, one layer sliced potatoes, a little chopped onion, one layer finely chopped uncooked veal, pepper and salt. Continue until dish is full. Put over the top pieces of butter. Bake forty-five minutes.

Fish Steaks—The steak of any firm white fish may be used for this purpose. Cut into pieces one inch thick and three inches square. Rub the bottom of a small dripping pan with a cut onion and butter it well. Sprinkle the squares lightly with pepper and salt on both sides, lay them in pan and cover with chopped parsley and a little finely minced onion or a few drops of onion juice. Drop on each a small piece of butter, squeeze over them the juice of a lemon and bake twenty minutes, keeping covered half the time. Serve plain.

Chicken Balls—Grind the white meat of a chicken and two medium-sized onions; season with salt and pepper. Mix with one egg and form into balls. Boil one quart of water to which one carrot (cut in small pieces) and sliced onions (three small ones with the skin on) are added. Cook ten minutes. Add the balls to the boiling water. Season to taste and cook half or three-fourths hour.

Dressing for Chicken Salad—Melt one-fourth pound butter; when it is very hot pour it over the beaten yolks of three eggs, beating hard all the time. Season with salt, capers and mustard and beat until very light. Thin with vinegar or lemon juice and let it get cold. Just before mixing with the chicken and celery add beaten whites of the three eggs to the dressing.

National Cake—White part: Cream together one cup sugar and one-half cup butter, then add one-half cup sweet milk, whites of four eggs, one-half cup cornstarch, one cup flour into which has been mixed one teaspoon cream of tartar, one-half teaspoon soda, flavor with lemon, and the blue and red parts use above recipe, using blue and red sugar; omit flavoring in the colored parts. Place the layers: First the red, then the white, last the blue. Bake in moderate oven.

Emergency Fruit Pudding—Take one cup mince meat with one cup (less if you wish a richer pudding) of prepared pancake flour. Add cautiously only enough milk to make a stiff drop batter, which should be put instantly into small greased aluminum cups and steamed twenty to thirty minutes—the longer the better. Cream or any of the usual pump puddings may be served with these little puddings. More time, proportionate to size and thickness, would be needed for a larger pudding.

Chocolate Bread Pudding—Ingredients: One cup bread crumbs, five cups scalded milk, one square chocolate, one-third cup sugar, one-fourth cup boiling water, one egg, one-eighth teaspoon salt, one-half teaspoon vanilla. Add the bread crumbs to the scalded milk and allow them to soak until soft. Add the boiling water to the chocolate, which has been cut in pieces, and gently cook until a smooth paste is formed. Add this to the milk mixture. Beat the egg, add the sugar and salt to it. Add the first mixture to the egg mixture, then add the vanilla and turn into a buttered pudding dish. Bake in a moderate oven twenty minutes. Serve with plain or whipped cream.

Filled Cookies—One cup granulated sugar and one-half cup lard mixed well; one egg and one-half cup sweet milk; dissolve one teaspoon of soda in milk; 3/4 cups flour sifted with two teaspoons cream of tartar. Roll very thin, put filling between two cookies and bake. One and one-half cups ground raisins, three-fourths cup granulated sugar mixed with one tablespoon flour. Cook until it begins to thicken, then cool. These are fine with afternoon teas.

DESCENDANT OF PATRICK HENRY LEADS THE FASHION IN SILHOUETTE COSTUME

Miss Evan Burrows Fontaine in stenciled hat and gown.

Miss Fontaine, who is a descendant of Patrick Henry, leads the fashion at a prominent New York hotel, appearing in an altogether new and novel costume attractively stenciled. Before her friends had recovered from the thrill caused by the sight of the first complete costume in silhouette designs, its wearer appeared in a street suit of white broadcloth with hat and accessories decorated with silhouettes of black swallows.

HEALTH TALKS

By WILLIAM BRADY, M. D.

Letters may be addressed to Wm. A. BRADY, M. D., in care of the Gazette

HOW TO LIVE WITH BRIGHT'S DISEASE.

First, have your Bright's disease detected before your health fails. This may seem like beginning a hundred years before your birthday, but it is not. It is much easier than that. All you have to do is report once a year to your family doctor, and, like the Hebrew who was informed that the new doctor charged only $3 for the second call, greet the doctor thus: "Well, Doctor, here I am again." And let him see how you compare with the specimen you were a year ago.

The average case of Bright's disease (nephritis) endures for about fifteen years. Without realizing that there is anything more than "dyspepsia," "nervousness," "liver trouble," "stomach aches," "anemia" or "biliousness" the matter, the patient is liable to cut himself off much sooner than that—the victim of Bright's disease really and truly digs his grave with his appetite. Not with his teeth. He doesn't give his teeth enough to do. It is appetite that kills. We poor ignorant civilized beings are obsessed with the fear of starvation; we hurriedly eat more than we can metabolize, and the kidneys have to stand the strain. The hardest thing a doctor has to do is to persuade an invalid or a near-invalid to skip a meal.

A three or four day fast is the nearest thing to a cure of diabetes yet discovered. A one day fast is wonderfully helpful in acute Bright's disease (uraemia especially), and an occasional fast enables the kidneys to catch up when handicapped by chronic Bright's disease. We welcome persons with Bright's disease as members of the Bread and Milk Club. One day of bread and milk diet in each week is a distinct advantage in the treatment of the disease.

As a vegetarian if you have Bright's disease. The animal proteins place the heaviest strain of all foods upon the kidneys, and a vegetarian diet can supply better energy and endurance than any kind of meat.

ITCHING BLISTERS ON BOY'S HEAD

Got Worse. Affected Ears, Neck and Face. Scratched Day and Night. Terribly Disfigured.

HEALED BY CUTICURA SOAP AND OINTMENT

"When four months old my boy suffered with blisters and a kind of scaly skin on his head. I got some salve and he didn't seem to improve but got worse and his ears, neck and face were affected. He scratched day and night the itching was so intense, and we had to keep his hands pinned the whole time. The skin was sore and inflamed, and he didn't have a hair on his head. It was just a cap of sore eruptions, and his face was terribly disfigured."

"He got so bad we had to keep a mask on his face. The trouble lasted for months, when a lady told my husband about Cuticura Soap and Ointment, and we got them. The third day I noticed a big improvement and in two weeks my boy was healed." (Signed) Mrs. H. A. Thiele, 345 6th St., Milwaukee, Wis., Oct. 25, 1915.

OUR SATURDAY NIGHT.

"I believe that when the Creator had progressed with the task of creation up to the point where you or I or any finite being would have thought it perfect and complete; when He had put the rose of the lily bough of the thorn which had been lovely before the bloom burst; when He had let the ripple rise on the bosom of the stream which had been of mirror-like beauty before the ripple came; when He had put the lily song into the gloriously burnished throat of the bird, which had been wondrously fair without the song—when He had done all of these things that nobody except a master artist, poet, or musician would have thought of doing—even then He was not wholly pleased. There was a lack. He knew what it lacked, knew what it was, knew how to supply it, was good enough to do so.

"The missing thing was humor or fun. He knew then as well as you and I have found out since that there would come blue Mondays—days when there was no pie at home, and plenty of pi in the office; days when there would be boiled dinners and the smell of suets; when all would seem wrong and some artificial means would be needed to portend over the stream of gloom to the land of real joy again. So He went about and into every think, where it would not create a discord. He rejected a bit of what we call fun. Then He looked over the job again, critically, and said: 'It is good.'

"And then He went on—for He is a progressive Creator—and He gave you and me and a few other special pets of His eyes to see, ears to hear, and hands to feel and respond to this thing called humor. And He still went on for He is a progressive Creator through more than one presidential campaign, and made a whole lot of human jokes who take themselves seriously. And that was the crowning work in supplying the universe with laughter."

The University of Kansas, through its department in Journalism, is doing much for the press of the state through organization, and as a result, it is claimed that one hundred thousand dollars worth of new advertising is now being placed.

A convention was recently held at the university, where all features of newspaper work were discussed by speakers of national reputation. One session was devoted to a "clinic on humor," conducted by Strickland Gillilan, the noted humorist of the "Baltimore News." He said among other things:

"Humor is one of the most valuable things on earth, and one of the things most constantly yearned for. Yet it is furnished oftener by people who know nothing about it than by those who do know. It is a thing absolutely necessary to newspapers and news-papers-making. The public demands it. When times are more troublous they demand more and more of it. And when times are fearfully bad, they demand the slapstick kind."

The paragraph which introduces this article is Mr. Gillilan's tribute to the Creator, as a humorist, and while the thought expressed may seem a little startling, in cold type, it will be found on inspection, that there is nothing sacrilegious about it.

The work of creation is so substantial that it has defied the wear and tear of centuries without murmur or complaint. The same white-capped mountain peaks gladden the eye, generation after generation, and the waves from the same old oceans sparkle in the morning sun as they rush over the sandy beaches which they have washed for thousands of years.

may require a stretch of imagination to picture nature in frolicsome mood, yet we speak of the lightning playing across the dark storm cloud, and the golden sunset paints a picture which no artist's brush has ever equalled.

the length of day means from sun to sun, with no thought of overtime. If you are a lover of nature, and a student of the animal kingdom, you know how a dog looks when he laughs, how a cat acts when he is so full of frolic that he can't keep still, how the surface of the water ripples and sparkles when the fish are at play, and how the forest rings with the melody of songsters.

The animal kingdom is a fun-loving kingdom and our wise Creator made no mistake when He commended His helpless creatures to look on the bright side of life.

The domain which occupies the most of our attention, is the domain of man. The kingdom which represents the last touch of creative genius. Unlike the realm of nature and of animals, this kingdom is endowed with power to think and act and so it is known as the Sovereign Kingdom. It represents all sorts of subjects, with all kinds of aims and ambitions, and in this free land, where every man is his brother's equal, the designs of the Creator may be realized, yet the struggle for existence and a foothold is often so absorbing that he becomes a serious proposition, and long faces and sour visages are constantly in evidence.

The good Lord, who permitted us to come into being, intended us to have a good time living. He not only paints the lily and decorates the landscape for our pleasure, but he endows the race with all sorts of talents and speakers who instruct and writers who unfold the secrets of science, and writers who make us laugh.

It is an old saying that "it takes all sorts of people to make a world," and the most casual observation verifies the statement. The viewpoint of life is influenced, to large extent, by education and environment, and so we have people who are so serious that they never crack a smile and others who are so joyous that they are always content to let the other fellow worry. There is a happy medium to which the most of us belong.

The family newspaper, which is read in the home more religiously than the family bible, attempts to cater to the wants and whims of all classes and in trying to analyze the public pulse, the publisher is often kept guessing.

The demand is so varied that the age in which we live is known as the feature era. In the newspaper world. These features include everything from health hints to comic strips which tell of the doings of the Van Loons and Petey Dink, and which many people read with more interest than the last note to Germany inspires.

The work of life is so serious and so absorbing that, any to in the way of relaxation is hailed with pleasure. The theatre, through the medium of the movies, has been brought down to the level of the masses, and many good people enjoy the pictures, with a clear conscience, who would be shocked if seated behind the footlights at a regular playhouse.

It is well for us that we know nothing about the future, so far as personal experience is concerned, but a little observation suggests to us that if we live our allotted time there will come a period on the last lap of the journey when strength and capacity for enjoyment will be weakened. So it is well for us to live by the day, extracting from life all the innocent pleasure to be obtained, mindful of the fact that the choicest joy is found in making other people happy.

URGES OBSERVANCE OF MEMORIAL DAY

Gov. Philipp Issues Proclamation Reminding Citizens of Duty to Keep the Day Memorable.
 (SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE)
 Madison, Wis., May 13.—In an official proclamation issued last night, Gov. Philipp designates May 30th as Memorial day. He asks the people to keep it memorable.

"The soldiers for the war for the union have a permanent place in the hearts of the American people," declares the proclamation. "The cause for which they fought and the spirit in which they left their peaceful callings to take up the work of war has made them a living force in the conscience of the Republic. As citizen soldiers who fought for peace and were adverse to war, they set an example for all time; and as such their spirits must ever march in the van of our nation's destiny."

"For these reasons the Grand Army is never dead. With each recurring year they stand before us as vitally as ever. The march of time has been unable to leave them behind."

"The day which is dedicated to their memory is not the anniversary of a great battle. We do not celebrate Antietam, or Gettysburg or Appomattox. Their day is not one of noisy demonstration as when we triumph over an alien foe. It is simply a day in spring when nature brings forth a fit spirit in which we remember those valiant hosts that felt no pride of conquest and left behind them no heritage of hate."

"I earnestly remind the people of their duty to keep May 30th memorable. In schools and churches and in public meeting places where all may join, let us honor their memory and again consecrate our remembrance to those national ideals which they cherished more dearly than their lives."

There's Not An Argument Against Refrigerators

If there is we would like to hear about it. Ask those who own one and everyone will tell you they couldn't get along without it. Ask those who don't and they don't know why they haven't one. Perhaps they might say it costs too much. THAT'S WHERE THEY ARE WRONG. If they would keep a record of all foodstuffs that spoil during the warm weather they would find that this amount alone would pay for a REFRIGERATOR.

ISSUE AUTO LICENSES BY THE HUNDREDS DAILY

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE)
 Madison, Wis., May 13.—The advent of good weather has brought an almost unprecedented number of applications for automobile licenses to the office of Secretary of State John S. Donald. The number received daily varies from 500 to 800. A total of 28,750 licenses were issued last year. Thus far this year over 81,000 licenses have been issued and there are several months of the year remaining. Alexander Cobban predicts that the 100,000 mark will be reached sometime during July, and says that the total for the year will approximate 110,000. The average horsepower is 25.

DO YOU KNOW

That The Life Insurance Policies You Are Carrying Are Not Worth As Much As They Were 10 Years Ago?

The purchasing power of a dollar is actually worth about 35% of what it was 10 years ago.

You are earning $1200 a year. If you carry $10,000 Life Insurance, that amount, paid at your death, carefully invested in good 6% mortgages would bring your widow and family $600 a year or just 1/2 what you are now earning.

Every man who thinks of his family and who produces for that family, by his efforts, an income of $1200 a year will, if he is half way decent, carry at least $10,000 Life Insurance which will provide for that family 1/2 of what he earns now in the event of his death.

My Dentist Says I Have Pyorrhea

And that it is caused by uric acid; that it is constitutional, etc., and that nothing can be done.

Then, and there again, such statements have been made, all of which have been absolutely and positively proven to be old fashioned and out-of-date, by hundreds of modern, progressive dentists.

Local irritation is removed, and the New School Treatments administered, it follows that a cure, or perfect comfort, is the result of such treatment.

Now, what phase of faulty treatment exists—in every case, if the old-fashioned theories are so hopelessly disproved, that the teeth are really dropped from the mouth, the cure is rapid and certain.

Modern, scientific teachings, about the causes, etc., give to the indolent and wavering dentist a welcome excuse to fold their hands and say: "Nothing can be done rank."

THREE BOYS' CASES SCHEDULED TUESDAY

No Further Arrests Made by Chief Champion Over Y. M. C. A.
Thefts.—One More to Come In.

Chief of Police P. D. Champion took no further legal action in the case of thefts at the Y. M. C. A. building, and with the exception of two cases, the whole matter is practically cleared up. One young man was called into the station this morning and told to make an honest report of gymnasium equipment that he had obtained and make a settlement.

The three boys' cases had been set for Tuesday morning. One other young man is seriously implicated and the police stated this morning that youth would face his charge Monday morning. The chief refused to state whether this unknown defendant was in custody, in Janesville or another city.

"I believe that the youths who took the gymnasium equipment because someone took their property, have some excuse. When these boys started going through the clothing taking money and watches, it was time to call a halt. When they failed to make good the losses, the only action that could be taken to bring the boys to their senses, and to impress them that they were really doing was through the court. They were given ample time to rectify their mistakes, without suffering arrest but they did not fully realize the seriousness of the offense they committed," stated the chief.

"It is generally the hope and opinion of the public that the boys will be afforded mercy in the court. The change of grade and the punishment by a severe penalty, but as it is impossible to recover the loss of the gold watch case, which was not recovered at the Chicago Pawn shop, has been made, the complaint must be reduced. At least the thing that the Y. M. C. A. will be stopped in the future, and more careful attention paid to the prevention of another such unpleasant experience."

AWAIT STATE REPORT ON NEW WATER RATES

New Schedule Probably to Become Effective July First.—Meter Rates Will be Lowered.

Members of the Board of Public Works who control the operations of the city water works, are expecting to receive a report on a schedule of reduced water rates, that are supposed to become effective July 1st. Over a month ago, the state commission sent a note to Janesville to make a report, on which the schedule of new rates could be compiled.

The board of public works took action and filed with the commission at their own idea of the change. They proposed to lower the minimum rate so that the patrons could use one thousand cubic feet of water for about two dollars per quarter. Under the present rates, the consumer has 956 cubic feet for $2.50, or about eight gallons a day for three months. Under the proposed change the consumer receives about one hundred gallons a day.

The question of the meters is being left to the Railroad commission. No reduction will probably be made on the flat rate, as the city proposes to have a standard meter system in the operation of the plant.

The report to be made by the state commission will probably show just how much revenue will be collected by the city for the operation of the plant, and an estimate based on the average expenses. It is planned to put the new rates into effect July 1st, so that the consumers will pay their first bills, under the new schedule, October 1st.

BIG SURVEY LIST OF RESERVE IS PLANNED FOR MILITARY SERVICE

Rock county surgeons who are on the government reserve list will be interested in the plan for the enrolling of several thousand physicians for immediate service in case of war are being prepared this week at the triennial congress of American physicians and surgeons. The plan contemplates raising 1,500 surgeons in Illinois alone.

Dr. Frederick H. Martin is the Chicago surgeon at this particular group meeting in the city of St. Paul. Dr. William May of Rochester and Dr. C. F. Simpson of Pittsburgh among other surgeons. Colonel Jefferson Keane of the American Red Cross is representing the army medical corps and in the administration of the work is the principal.

Efficiency is Lacking.

One of the American physicians serving in the American ambulance service in France remarked that although funds in excess of needs for all equipment was furnished and the personnel was ready before the hospital unit left the United States, it was not until before full efficiency had been attained.

To guard against the catastrophe this would mean in case of a war in which it was necessary to depend on the ambulance service, the American Red Cross is doing its best to get the surgeons and nurses of the country trained for immediate service. This is the prime purpose of the Red Cross, and the campaign now being held at Chevy Chase, which several of the physicians have taken time to study.

Organize Base Units.

There are being organized over the country base units, just now connected with great city hospitals, where surgeons and nurses are already working together. They are movable in that the personnel is placed to go to the front as needed by the government. Equipment is not as plentiful as it might be, for the Red Cross is depending on popular subscription for this.

Greatest progress is reported from New York, Cleveland, Boston, Baltimore and Rochester, N. Y., but the congress feels other cities will be fully represented in the medical corps re- serve within the next few months.

HEAD OF C. & N. W. SILVER BLACK FOX

FARMING IN STATE HAS WIDE OUTLOOK

Collins Corporation Now Forming at Reedsburg Will Promote Extremely Profitable Industry.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

Reedsburg, May 12.—All phases of animal husbandry have been carried to a high degree of development upon scientific lines, and Wisconsin is again leading the nation in the rearing of the noblest new industry of fur farming, or the production of silver black foxes in captivity, and the city of Reedsburg has already blazed the trail by the establishment, in 1915, of the first fox farm in the state, and by preparing to open a second ranch incorporated under the title of the Silver Black Fox company, with a capital stock of $50,000.

Both companies are under the personal direction and management of J. S. J. Collins, who first introduced the new business into the state about a year ago when he returned from northern Canada with twelve pairs of choice silver foxes, organized the Reedsburg Silver Black Fox company, constructed and equipped a modern fox ranch, and began the production of domesticated foxes.

Collins' attention was first directed to the possibilities of the fur farming industry, while acting as substitute in the office of another veterinary surgeon in Winnipeg. He was one day called upon to examine and certify to the condition of health of three silver black fox pups in order that they might be insured during shipment from Winnipeg to an eastern city, where he was to sell them to a fox breeder at the apparently enormous price of $15,000.

Profits Attraction.

Upon learning the supposed value of the three silver foxes, the doctor looked upon the matter as a joke, or the fancy of an unbalanced mind; but inquiry and later investigation proved conclusively that fur farming had passed successfully through with Reedsburg and was then a firmly established and highly profitable industry on Prince Edward Island, in New Brunswick, and in parts of eastern Canada. Astonished and intensely interested, he continued his study of the new proposition and as a result was soon on his way with dog teams and Indian guides to search for furred beauties of the northern woods.

After a never-to-be forgotten winter, the party returned in canoes to Norway House, Lake Winnipeg, with silver foxes, which he sold to the fur farms of Prince Edward Island, where they were in great demand for breeding purposes, and sold for fabulous prices.

Industry Carefully Studied.

Several later trips of similar interest and profit, were made, and having by close observation and intelligent investigation and study of the fox ranching industry, convinced himself of its untold possibilities, Dr. Collins decided to open a fur farm at his home city, knowing that the location, soil and climatic conditions are such as have always produced excellent fur-bearing wild state, and must therefore tend to produce pelts of unsurpassed quality from domesticated foxes carefully selected from the best stock noted for their high pelt value.

The demand for silver black fox fur has always been large and has, in recent years, increased so rapidly that the supply has become almost depleted. This lack of pelts in the natural state, and the fact that during the twenty-five years in which the silver fox skins have been on the fur markets of the world they have, on the average sold at a price six times as large as that of the skins of wild animals, and which has been growing less year by year, is now almost depleted. This lack of pelts in the natural state, and the fact that during the twenty-five years in which the silver fox skins have been on the fur markets of the world they have, on the average sold at a price six times as large as that of the skins of wild animals, and which has been growing less year by year, is now almost depleted.

That the citizens of Reedsburg and the surrounding territory as well as of the state in general are not slow to realize the profitable features of this enterprise, or in showing their appreciation of Dr. Collins' plans for the advancement of the industrial activities, in 1907 the Dalton ranch sold a pelt for $11,000, and another in 1910 for $2,875.00. In the eleven years between 1900 and 1911, for each $11,000 received by the Hudson Bay company for sales of skins from the wild, the Reedsburg Silver Black Fox company received $3,739.40, a value more than three times as great.

It is safe to predict that by the end of the present year the Reedsburg fox farm will be the factor of no small proportions in the production of silver fox furs, and in the propagation and continuation of the choicest strains of pure ranch-bred foxes.

President Gardner of Northwestern System Mourned by Thousands.

—Began As Operator.

William A. Gardner, president of the Chicago & Northwestern railway since 1910, died Thursday evening at his summer home at Osterville, Mass. He left Janesville at Chicago for a short rest about ten days ago. Mrs. Gardner was with him.

Mr. Gardner was 57 years old. He entered the service of the Northwestern as an assistant in 1878. Since that time his advance had been steady. In 1910 he became president, succeeding Marvin Huggitt, who was the chairman of the board of directors.

Mr. Gardner was born at Gardner, Ill. He entered railway service in 1872 as telegraph operator, Chicago & Alton railway, at Lemont, Ill. He later was chief operator and chief train dispatcher in the office of the superintendent of the Wisconsin division, Chicago & Northwestern railway; train-master and assistant general manager of the same division; assistant general superintendent, general manager, vice president in charge of operation and maintenance; president of the Chicago & Northwestern railway; and president of the Chicago & Northwestern railway.

In his forty years of railroading Mr. Gardner was noted for standing by the employees. Track walkers, telegraphers, conductors, division superintendents—all knew they could rely on him and a square deal. And the result showed in the road. The Northwestern hardly knew what labor trouble was during the regime of President Gardner.

The funeral services were held this afternoon from his late residence in Evanston.

AT THE APOLLO.

Jack Barrymore Smashes Precedent. The incomparable Jack Barrymore has had many roles on the screen including princes, dukes, earls, men of extremely elegant leisure and other interesting types but he has never before played a crook. This remarkable characterization he has reserved for his latest Famous Players-Paramount Picture "The Lost Bridegroom" which is the attraction at the Apollo Theatre on Wednesday. Of course Barrymore is not a bona fide crook in the picture. He has been bit on the head by two thugs while returning from his bachelor dinner on the eve of his wedding to Dorothy Hardin, and has completely lost his memory as a result of the blow.

"The Lost Bridegroom" has more real thrills than any picture in which Barrymore has ever appeared, but is by no means lacking in humor, for which he has become justly celebrated. The picture was directed for the Famous Players Company by James Kirkwood, with Katherine Harris, Ida Darling, June Dale, Hardie Kirkland, Edward Sturgis and others of equal merit in support of Barrymore.

AT THE APOLLO.

Constance Collier in "The Code of Marcia Gray." A perfect example of a love that was so deep and lasting that it kept a man single and faithful during the many years that his desire was married to another woman. The picture is a photo-play "The Code of Marcia Gray" with Constance Collier, released on the Paramount program at the Apollo Monday.

Handsome Forrest Stanley as Orlando Castle, the lawyer who was the disappointed suitor for Marcia's hand and heart plays a difficult role in a finished manner.

The spectacular career of Harry Gray, the famous star in a prison cell and it is to Castle as a last resort that Marcia comes.

In these fiber-testing times Marcia cannot help but compare the real caliber of the two, her husband and Castle. To Castle it is the acid-test for he is with Marcia constantly. Compelling realism is given to this interesting situation by the capital acting of this strong cast with Constance Collier the English star as Marcia.

AT BEVERLY THEATRE.

"The Craving" on Monday. The Monday attraction at the Beverly theatre is the Mutual masterpiece, "The Craving," featuring in the leading role the well known film star William Russell. This is a dramatic feature with a large and select cast. In addition to the feature a good comedy will be shown as usual.

NEWS NOTES from MOVIELAND

BY DAISY DEAN

In "Pasquale" forthcoming picture, George Beban is displayed in what is felt will prove his greatest vehicle ever presented either on the stage or on the screen. The story has to do with the lives of a hard working and kind Italian grocer and a wealthy banker, both of whom are called to the other side to defend their colors.

The many dramatic qualities of the plot are offset by the various incidents of unusual heart interest which are brought out to particular advantage and in a manner such as only George Beban can present.

In the way of spectacular displays several immense battle scenes showing monstrous machines of war at work together with a thrilling hand-to-hand struggle in the trenches, are presented. A fleet of Zeppelins in the sky at night with searchlights playing upon them and the final destruction of a complete section of a modern trench display additional scenes of unusual quality.

CAN MAY NIGHT RIVAL JUNE DAY June Day, a twinkling little star in the studio galaxy, is undisturbed by the prospect of a rival suggested by the following letter received the other day by Siegmund Lubin:

"Dear Sir, will you engage me in your pictures? My name is May Knight and I think I ought to be able to do as good as June Day."

Little Septy Morn is yet to be heard from.

WHEN MR. ALLIGATOR MET SID'S "DEE DEE"

Sydney Mason in one of the forces now in Jacksonville, Fla., spent some of his time recently visiting one of the noted Florida alligator farms. "Dee Dee," his pet canine, weighing about two pounds, went along with him.

Unfortunately for "Dee Dee," however, he let his inquisitiveness get the better of him. Result—Mr. Alligator had a small sized meal and Mason is mourning for "Dee Dee."

Dick Rosson, leading man, and Miss Verna Sisson, star, who was formerly with J. Warren Kerrigan, were recently married. The wedding was a quiet affair. Mr. Rosson and Miss Sisson slipped away and when they returned Miss Sisson was Miss Sisson no longer. Mr. Rosson is a brother of Helene and Queenie Rosson.

Alfred Niece, now in Los Angeles, was formerly known as the "Alaskan Prince Donna," and appeared in Nome, Fairbanks, Dawson City and other cities in Alaska.

"A NIGHT OUT" WAS SCREAMINGLY FUNNY

May Robson Delighted Many by Her Comic Capers at the Beverly.

May Robson sure proved herself a delicious treat to the real amusement lovers of Jacksonville last night at the Beverly theater. "A Night Out" was the vehicle she used to display her five long, untiresome reels she kept the audience in a perpetual state of good humor. The story itself had quite a fascinating little plot and brought the audience up to some very clever climaxes. Miss Robson took the part of the kind hearted "Grandmum" of two dare-devil boys and got herself into quite a predicament just for being such a good sport. The soured old mother of the boys put the many merry scenes and surprises even herself at the end of the picture in her wish to become one of the pair of gay livers. Each and every eye of the cast became a part in the moving comedy.

Bessie Barriscale, Tonight in "Honor's Altar."

"Honor's Altar," the new Ince-Triangle drama, tells the story of a self made captain of industry who tries to rid himself of the wife of his youth through an unscrupulous accomplice. It will appear at the Beverly theatre tonight. Frederick Mallery (Walter Edwards) has risen by his own efforts from poverty to a place of power in the world. He thinks that the wife (Bessie Barriscale), who was good enough to share the privations of the lean years, is now not brilliant enough socially. The glamour of the social world has cast a spell upon him, and he considers himself a real "lady killer." As a matter of fact, the women of his "set" tolerate Mallery because of his wealth, though they ridicule him among themselves. Mallery hasn't the moral courage to tell his wife that he has outgrown her in his opinion and that he would appreciate it if she would become interested in some other man, leaving him free. Mallery comes across a man named Warren Woods (Lewis Stone), who asserts that he has lost all sense of honor. To Woods Mallery makes an offer of $50,000 if he will win Mrs. Mallery's affections, thus freeing the magnate. The bargain is struck, and Mallery introduces Woods to his wife as a friend.

Bessie Barriscale, the Charming Star of the New and Intense Triangle-Kay Bee Drama, "Honor's Altar."

AT BEVERLY THEATRE.

Dorothy Gish in "Betty of Graystone" The Pine Arts-Triangle play, at the Beverly on Sunday, has a strong cast. Dorothy Gish, the star, will be remembered for her work in the Pine Dorothy Gish and Owen Moore in "Betty of Graystone," New Triangle-Fine Arts Comedy Drama.

Arts productions, "Old Heidelberg" and "Jordan is a Hard Road." Her leading man is Owen Moore, who played opposite Miss Gish in "Jordan is a Hard Road." George Fawcett, the ogre-like speculator in the Ince-Triangle play, "The Corner," has an important character part as an old New Englander of peculiar habits. He will be remembered as the principal of such New York productions as "What Money Can't Buy," and "The Law of the Land." Kid McCoy, former champion boxer, has the role of one of Fawcett's uncouth sons.

Miss Gish, youngest star appearing on the screen, recently celebrated her sixteenth birthday. Her first essay in motion pictures was made with the Biograph company, under the direction of D. W. Griffith.

Owen Moore, leading man in "Betty of Graystone," was born in Ireland and came to this country when eleven years old. He was educated in Toledo, O., but made his theatrical debut in New York. He is young, handsome, athletic, and the husband of Mary Pickford.

A Cure for Type-Madness.
There is only one way to combat the "Type Madness" of the theatrical managers, and it takes about ten years of hard labor," says Juliette Day whose performance in the Salisbury Field-Margaret Mayo farce, "Twin Beds" which comes to Myers Theatre on Monday, May 15 is one of the out-standing factors in its success.

"It takes wisdom, and patience and guile, and, like the funny old negro preacher advising his congregation on mixing the wisdom of the serpent with the sweetness of the dove, you want to mix it about three parts serpent to one part dove, but unless you want to go from your first part to your last doing identically the same thing—just changing the names of your parts—you have to get out and hustle.

"The great trouble with most of us is that we get sick of playing the part that makes us famous, and we say, 'Give me something as unlike this as day to night. The startled manager repudiates us—and I'm not certain I blame him. But if you go guilefully and say to him, 'Of course, I've got to go on with this same old stuff—they expect it of me—but it wouldn't do any harm—I reckon, to alter the dresses a little—give them a little variety.' He says all right—it isn't that he agrees with you—it's that he doesn't pay any attention. Well, it won't take you more than one season to widen that opening wedge. You do it so gently that nobody ever notices, till one fine day, five years later, everybody knows and says, 'Why, this isn't the kind of thing you used to do! It's that that keeps us all alive.'"

AT MYERS THEATRE.

Lee Wilson Dodd's dramatization of "His Majesty Bunker Bean", based on the story by the same name, by Harry Leon Wilson, which ran as a serial in the Saturday Evening Post three years ago, will be presented at Myers Theatre for one performance, on Friday evening, June 2nd, with Taylor Holmes and the entire original cast, coming here direct from an engagement of more than six months at the Cort Theatre, Chicago.

Mr. Holmes, the young comedian who is being starred by Joseph Brooks, will assume the title role of Bunker Bean. For his support the brilliant company embraces Charles Abbe, Florence Shirley, Robert Kelly, Jack Devereaux, Lillian Lawrence, Walter M. Sherwin, Marion Kerby, Clara Louise Moores, Harry C. Power, Horace Mitchell, Grace Peters, John Hogan, Bedford Forrest, Annette Westbay and George C. Lyman.

The action revolves around a period in the life of Bunker Bean, a serious-minded young stenographer who gains unexpected success and strength through the belief that he is the reincarnation not only of Napoleon Bonaparte, but also of Ram-Tah, a powerful Egyptian king of ancient times. The newly found confidence in himself transforms Bunker into an energetic business man, so sure of himself that success follows him in business, and, with the assistance of his sweetheart, in love, the four acts all revolve about Bunker Bean during the state of his transition. And there is a moral: "As a Man Thinketh."

The dramatist has preserved the characters so clearly drawn in the original work by Mr. Wilson. There is "Pops," the financial power, and his daughter, the "Plapper," who marries Bunker willy-nilly; there is the "Demon" grandmother, and the "Big Sister" and her lazy mother, "The Waster," and "The Greater Left Handed Pitcher the World Has Ever Known," and others who will be familiar to those who have read the original story, and just as interesting to those who have not.

AT MYERS THEATRE.

"This is The Life." Halton Powell's latest and best song and dance play "This is The Life," with a galaxy of well-known farceurs in the principal roles, will hold forth at the Myers Theatre next Saturday, matinee and night.

This, the newest of modern style musical farces, is creating a sensation in every city visited. It is full of what is known in stage parlance as "ginger."

The fun is up to the Powell high-water mark of excellence all the time and the unusually clever company put it over the footlights in a steady stream. Not the least entertaining feature of the big production is the dancing contingent and the Charlie Intoxication, Passion and Beauty in "Experience".

The biggest dramatic treat of the entire season in Milwaukee will be the appearance at the Davidson Theatre here, beginning Sunday night, of the famous modern morality drama, "Experience," which has just concluded a phenomenal engagement of twenty-two weeks in Chicago. The play is a big, brilliant, massive spectacle and drama, which has received the enthusiastic endorsement of clergymen of all denominations as a great moral force for good. In fact, it is said that no play since the days of "Ben Hur" has been welcomed by the Clergy in the way, they have received "Experience."

The play is in ten scenes and is presented by a company of 82 people. It is patterned after the style of the old time morality dramas of three centuries ago, scenes and incidents are strictly up-to-date. It shows the adventures or experiences of the average young man of today who leaves a small town and goes to a big city. It pictures in vivid and dramatic form his trials, his troubles and his temptations while making his uphill fight toward success. He meets Pleasure, becomes friends with Intoxication, gets acquainted with Chance, the gambler, loses all his money and looks for work, eludes Poverty and is almost tempted to join forces of Crime when Experience and the influence of the Church, with the memory of his mother's love brings him back to his little country home and the way of right living with his sweetheart, Love.

The play will be given for one week only, at the same scale of prices that prevailed in Chicago, 50c to $1.50 at the evening performance and the Saturday matinee, with a bargain matinee Wednesday, when the best seats will be $1.00.

Mail orders, accompanied by remittances, may be sent to the Davidson Theatre, Milwaukee.

WANT LAWS AGAINST THE SINGING AND PLAYING OF NATIONAL AIRS ON STAGE.

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE)
Newark, N. J., May 13.—The orchestra that makes a last desperate bid for applause by hanging out the Star Spangled Banner, the band that meddles My Country 'Tis of Thee with ragtime, and the vaudeville act that closes with a tremendous flapping of the American flag will all be under the ban, if the National Sons of the American Revolution, who met here today, have their way.

Members of this organization, all sons of the men who achieved American independence, plan a campaign for laws in all the states and territories against such performances. It is part of their effort to bring about a "more dignified and reverent" attitude toward the Fathers of the Republic.

BLUE JAY
Cyanocitta cristata

Length, eleven and one-half inches. The brilliant blue of the wings and tail combined with the black crescent of the upper breast and the crested head distinguish this species.

Range: Resident in the eastern United States and southern Canada, west to the Dakotas, Colorado, and Texas.

Habits and economic status: The blue jay is of a dual nature. Cautious and silent in the vicinity of its nest, away from it it is bold and noisy. Sly in the commission of mischief, it is ever ready to scream "thief" at the slightest disturbance. As usual in such cases, its remarks are applicable to none more than itself, a fact neighboring nest holders know to their sorrow, for during the breeding season the jay lays heavy toll upon the eggs and young of other birds, and in doing so deprives us of the services of species more beneficial than itself. Approximately three-fourths of the annual food of the blue jay is vegetable matter, the greater part of which is composed of mast, i. e., acorns, chestnuts, beechnuts, and the like. Corn is the principal cultivated crop upon which this bird feeds, but stomach analysis indicates that most of the corn taken is waste grain. Such noxious insects as wood-boring beetles, grasshoppers, eggs of various caterpillars, and scale insects constitute about one-fifth of its food.

The Bride's Home Will Be Happier If It Is Electrically Equipped.

In former days when the bride entered her new home the room that interested her most was the kitchen. And the first piece of furniture that struck her eye was the wood range.

THE BRIDE OF TODAY is interested in the same room but she looks for the range that will cook without smoke or fumes and without overheating the room, a range that will not smoke or begrim her cooking utensils, that will eliminate useless drudgery.

She will be best suited with the ELECTRIC RANGE.

Blue Monday comes next to the mind of the practical bride. If her home is equipped with electricity wash day is devoid of all dreeds. It becomes a health and money saver with an ELECTRIC WASHING MACHINE.

Tuesday is Ironing Day and the ironing is quickly dispensed with, without overheating the room with a fire in the range by an ELECTRIC IRON.

Wednesday, while entertaining, she will want an ELECTRIC FAN to keep the company cool and in good spirits.

Thursday is the day of light luncheons prepared quickly and conveniently on the table with an ELECTRIC CHAFING DISH AND PERCOLATOR.

Friday with its house cleaning is the worst of all. With a FARNTZ ELECTRIC CLEANER she will have it done by 9 o'clock.

Saturday—baking a pleasure with the ELECTRIC STOVE.

Sunday, the day of rest. Cook the dinner in the ELECTRIC FIRELESS COOKER while at church.

For every day in the week let the Janesville Contracting Company fit you out in everything electrical.

THE GAZETTE'S MOTORIST PROBLEM DEPARTMENT

(Published Saturdays.)

Motoring Department, The Gazette.—Will you please inform me if the carburetor adjustment is affected by different altitudes? I am told that a motorist going from the coast to the Berkshires found it necessary to readjust the carburetor considerably to meet the conditions brought about by the change of altitude. What would cause such conditions? W. K.

The atmospheric pressure is less at high altitudes than at low; therefore, the suction of the motor would be weakened at high altitudes, changing the balance between the primary air current and the auxiliary air valve spring would have to be changed a little to meet the new conditions. A carburetor with a water jacket would need less adjustment than one without an auxiliary air inlet and the latter would probably need no readjustment at all.

Motoring Department, The Gazette.—I have a 1915 Ford which has been run about 12,000 miles but has always had good cars. I have just had the engine out and took up the rod and main bearings and I noticed that there was a little side slip in the piston bearings, but did not touch them, and now I am having a hard time to get a sharp click when climbing a grade with the spark advanced. Is there anything wrong with the connecting rod? I also have a lot of trouble with the car jerking when I speed up the car and then slow down. When the speed is down to about nine or ten miles the car begins to jerk and the only way I can stop it is to use the throttle again to release the clutch. What would cause this? R. M.

The wrist pin bushing should be a good fit or the engine will have a knock that is particularly noticeable after the connecting rod bearings have been taken up. Look for a loose fit in the main manifold. This would affect the mixture at low speeds but not at high speeds.

Motoring Department, The Gazette.—What is the difference between a full floating rear axle and a semi-floating rear axle? What advantage has a full-floating rear axle over a semi-floating axle? Does a semi-floating rear axle drive both hind wheels or only one? H. V.

A full-floating axle has the rear wheels run on ball or roller bearings that are mounted on the ends of the axle housing, and the axle shafts, inserted from the outside, carry no part of the weight of the car. A semi-floating axle has the wheels fixed securely on the axle shafts and the shafts carry the full weight of the rear of car. They can be removed by taking the wheels off and loosening the bearings.

Motoring Department, The Gazette.—My engine should use medium oil. If heavy oil is used or slightly heavier to prevent noise, would it cause carbonization? It is understood that kerosene poured in air filter of carburetor while engine is hot and running will prevent carbon. Why? Does not kerosene carbonize much more readily than gas, so how can it remove carbon if put in motor while running and stopped at once? R. P.

Heavy oil will cause no more carbon than light oil, but owing to the thicker film of oil between the cylinder walls and pistons the engine will crank harder when cold. Liquid kerosene injected through air valve when the engine is running loosens the carbon deposits and allows it to be blown out with the exhaust. Water is even better than kerosene and leaves no carbon of its own, as is the case when kerosene is used.

Motoring Department, The Gazette.—What causes a car to smoke, especially on low gear, even if it is little low? What causes an engine to balk when spark is retarded? What is proper quantity of kerosene for each cylinder, and could this be put in through priming cups? If a sheet of metal were clamped around exhaust pipe at one end and around manifold at the other, and in this way beat manifold, would this save gas? READER.

Piston rings do not fit the cylinders. If the cylinders have worn so they are not round they will have to be reground and new pistons and rings made.

See if the wires all make firm contact when retarded. If the spark is timed right, and that there are no leaks in the intake manifold joints.

About a tablespoonful injected through the prime generally does the trick. The more the temperature of the mixture can be raised before it enters the cylinder, the higher will be the compression temperature.

Motoring Department, The Gazette.—

HELPFUL HINTS

Considerable hard work can be avoided on the road if the tire rims are inspected occasionally with a file, sandpaper and aluminum plate. It is also good to prevent the head of the tire from rusting on the rim. It is a difficult matter to remove the casing from a rim when it has become rusted.

Numerous complaints are registered because front tires wear out more quickly than the rear tires. The fact is that front tires should last considerably longer than the rear tires, in that they are relieved of driving strains. Excessive wear on front tires is more generally due to misalignment of the front wheels. Drivers forget that they often hit the curb with the front wheels and in this manner throw them out of alignment.

It is not advisable to attempt to straighten a valve stem and the shorter stem may be straightened and used temporarily to good advantage, nevertheless it is best to replace the valve with a new one. If this is not done a leaky valve is bound to result. It is more economical and more satisfactory to install a new valve as soon as possible.

Where the vacuum system of gasoline feed is used and a leak is suspected somewhere between the small tank and the engine tank, one may check up the fault by blowing into the big tank. Sufficient air pressure must be created in the large tank to force the gasoline up through the main feed pipe. A leak in the main pipe may be noted under those conditions.

If motor persists in missing when only a light load is being carried, but no reason can be found, so how can it remove carbon if put in motor while running and stopped at once? R. P.

Heavy oil will cause no more carbon than light oil, but owing to the thicker film of oil between the cylinder walls and pistons the engine will crank harder when cold. Liquid kerosene injected through air valve when the engine is running loosens the carbon deposits and allows

A short time ago the motor of my 1914 Ford began to run irregularly and sputter occasionally. While investigating I found that No. 3 cylinder had practically no compression after grinding in the valves, which looked as though they might have been causing the trouble. I ran the motor for an hour or so and found No. 3 the same as before I ground the valves in No. 2, then concluded that the rings were at fault, but after replacing them the compression in both cylinders was hardly noticeable. The valve stems all have plenty of clearance, and I am unable to find the leak around the cylinder head gasket.

Some small particles of carbon of grinding compound may be lodged between the valves and the seats. Take the head off; grind the valves very carefully and wash the valves and cylinder head thoroughly with gasoline. Apply three or four coats of shellac on gasket before replacing the head. Do not put the exhaust manifold on until you have tried the compression.

By listening at the valve chambers while the engine is being cranked any valve leak may be noticed.

Motoring Department, The Gazette.—I have a Warner speedometer, which uses a 32x34-inch tire, and in changing cars I now use a 32x34-inch tire. I would like to know the number of teeth on the gear and also the little gear that I will have to get so as to use the same swivel and head on the 32x34-inch tire. READER.

The small gear must have two teeth for a 32x34-inch tire than for a 34x44-inch tire, using the same large gear for either.

Motoring Department, The Gazette.—Will you kindly publish through the auto news column the number of what would cost for putting in a new crankshaft in an Auburn? Also about how many hours it would take to do same, using two men? A. B.

Provided no other work was done two men ought to install the crankshaft of a two-cylinder motor in about two days. A four-cylinder crankshaft would take somewhat longer.

Motoring Department, The Gazette.—What manifold connection does the Schuler Model H carburetor use? How long will four dry batteries light a 25-candle power, 2 1/2 ampere, six-coil nitrogen gas-filled bulb? How can I make a sealing compound for dry batteries—something that can be remelted? C. G.

Three-fourths inch or one-inch United States pipe threaded if the valves are fed from the right side of the engine, about eight hours. Dry cells last longer if the motor is intermittent than where it is continuous. Having asphalt makes a good sealing compound, or resin may be used.

Motoring Department, The Gazette.—My car is equipped with a vacuum feed with tank under the hood on the right side from which the gas falls by gravity to the carburetor. If I use a vacuum feed, my motor runs faster when the left side of the car is depressed and slows up when the right side is depressed. I do not understand this, as at all times the carburetor is lower than the vacuum feed tank. Can you suggest an adjustment which would overcome this? P. K.

Depressing the car on one side or the other in some way changes the adjustment of the rod that opens the throttle. Look at the connections from the hand throttle lever to the throttle and see if they are true or if the throttle itself is loose. The vacuum feed has no control over the engine speed.

Temperance Talk

By Temperance Educational League.

Business Men Favor Prohibition. It is interesting to read the statements of business men who have been effected by prohibition. They have before us the statement of Ray Parkhurst, a tailor of Portland, Oregon. Before temperance went into effect Mr. Parkhurst was opposed to prohibition because he thought it would injure his business, but now the results have been beneficial, and now he is an advocate of prohibition, because it has brought an increase in the profits of his business.

His statement is in part as follows: "Before prohibition went into effect, when I was convinced and was sincere in my thought that my business would decrease and that I would have to reduce the number of employees in my business at least half. The effect has been just contrary and I have had to hire extra men to care for the added business secured since January 1."

Men who have more money to spend for clothing than they did when they spent a percentage of their earnings for liquor. There have been fewer men asking for credit than there were when the town was wet and when they are given credit they keep their promises and pay their bills when due.

Through extensive advertising I have always secured a large business from men who work in lumber camps and places of that kind. With their pockets filled with money after several months in the woods these men used to walk into my store and order a suit of clothes immediately after reaching town. They would pay a deposit and we would start making the suit. The men then went to the saloons and spent their money. The result was that they forgot about the suit and left it on our hands. Now they are sober and order more expensive clothes. They don't go away and forget to pay for their suits.

Prohibition has come to stay and there will never be a chance for it to be defeated and the saloon returned. If the increase of business is any criterion of its success. A man fights against an Green when he thinks that its passage will affect his pocketbook or bank roll. Many of the business men who fought Prohibition on these grounds are now convinced that the law is a success."

GOOD BOOKS NEEDED BY SCHOOL CHILDREN

Good Books Needed. The Relation of Books to Children and the Relation of Books to the Deaf and Dumb. Conference.

(By Associated Press.)

Indianapolis, May 13.—Children and their relation to books formed an important part of the program of address today at the National Conference of Charities and Correction.

"The Boy and the Book" was the subject of a paper by W. L. Kuiper, superintendent industrial school for boys, Eldora, Ia.

"One of the greatest tragedies in the life of a human being," he said, "is to be denied the pleasure, the benefit and the culture to be derived from the perusal and study of good books. Many a young chap realizes his needs and appreciates the value of the systematic use of good books but we have done so little to show him the way to use these golden vessels of the temple which contain all that mankind has thought, gained or been."

"Every boy should have a library case or at least a shelf of the general home library which he can call his own. He should, in a measure, be permitted to select his books. Every boy should have a happy lot him take the one he wants. It may not be the best of the lot but he will enjoy more the reading of it. He may choose Treasure Island in preference to Pilgrimage to Progress, but the next will be Robinson Crusoe when it might have been Marmion, but by the time he is 14 years old he will have walked with the Master and other strong characters of the Bible, and many happy hours with Grimm, philosophized with Aesop, sympathized with Jean Valjean, sailed with Ulysses, studied with Homer and looked on the faces of Shakespeare, Raskin, Kingsley, Milton and others too numerous to mention."

Need of Books.

Florence R. Curtis, associate, University of Illinois library school, Urbana, Ill., told of libraries in public institutions.

"That a good book in proper hands may be a balm for many ills that public institutions can only partially cure, was shown by Miss Curtis. She has just completed a study of libraries in six hundred institutions supported by the national and state governments caring for all classes of dependents, defectives and delinquents. Aside from facts bearing on the particular value of books in all these classes, Miss Curtis entered into a series of recommendations for the improvement of library work as a type of social service, appealing especially to the activities of state library commissions and similar agencies. Some of the states have supervising librarians over institutions of this class."

"The Value of Books in Institutions for the Special Classes" was the subject of a paper by Edith Kathleen Jones, librarian, McLean hospital, Waverly, Mass. Among other things she said:

"What constitutes a library? Not a mass of books lying idle on the shelves. Not even a well selected, classified and catalogued collection of books left to itself. A library is never finished. If it is, it is dead; it must be vital and progressive to be of any use."

"Private hospitals and the larger prisons and reform schools should have their own librarians. State institutions perhaps cannot afford extra salaries for this. Iowa, Minnesota and Nebraska have worked out solutions of this problem—they have state institution library supervisors appointed by the state board of control in the first two cases, and by the state library commission in Nebraska."

CUPID HAS BEEN BUSY IN CITY OF MONROE

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE)

Monroe, Wis., May 13.—The Leap Year love god is making a good record in this county. The first four months of the present year has shown more activity on the part of the little love deity in Green county than the same period in 1915. According to the records of County Clerk J. W. Stewart seventy-four licenses were issued during that period.

Although this is the twelfth day of the present month, not a single marriage license has been issued for the month in Green county. Although County Clerk Stewart's offer of a free marriage license to the first girl who will announce she is a leap year bride, having popped the question and been accepted, is still open, none of the seventy-four permits issued so far this year have fulfilled all the terms of this offer.

OVERHEAD CAMS—THE SECRET OF THE PERFORMANCE OF THIS SIX-40 CHALMERS

Overhead cams are the secret of engine strength of the Six-40 Chalmers touring car.

This means direct engine action—which is based on the imperishable principle that a straight line is the shortest and swiftest distance between two points.

That principle is as old as Euclid, father of mathematics.

This able Chalmers engine is known as the valve-in-head motor with overhead camshaft.

The exploding gas crashes squarely into the piston head instead of striking a glancing blow and partially wasting its force on the cylinder walls.

Thus every atom of energy is hurled into harness, which accounts for this car's great acceleration powers, for the silken evenness of its stream of might, for its singular fuel-thrift.

Every successful racing car employs this direct-action motor principle.

The Six-40 Chalmers engine is a racing engine, tamed and toned down to the point where the average man or woman dare drive.

This car is the big sister of the celebrated 3400 r. p. m. Chalmers, which has conquered the country with its gallant performance.

This bigger, roomier Six-40 performs magnificently. The superfluous might of its engine's wallop is recast into pick-up—for remember that supreme might and supreme pick-up are never team-mates.

This car carries me 60 miles an hour when I sink the throttle to the floor-board. Faster than that I'm not keen to go. Are you?

Six-40 Chalmers means easy driving, easy riding, infallible acceleration every time there's a cloud of dust or a grade to hit.

It means 16 miles per gallon of gas, direction as straight as a lance, and instant obedience to every impulse that flows into the control-board.

This car's a handsome beast, with lustrous coach finish, incomparable Chalmers molded fenders and upholstery that upholds the most exacting traditions of comfort.

Ask your dealer about Chalmers service inspection coupons, negotiable at all Chalmers dealers everywhere. This system is a most important consideration in buying your car.

Why Soils Get Dry.

Most partly roundown-soils have lost much of the organic matter they had originally. The growing of wheat and corn uses up the soil humus at a rapid rate, and so the time comes when a severe drought destroys the plants on a soil that does not hold the moisture to the extent that it formerly did. Then the plants die, and the farmer blames the dry weather.

Children's Serial Story

THE TRIPLE NET.

By Paul Holmes.

CHAPTER ELEVEN.

The Edward National Bank.

In all the excitement of the eastern journey Kit did not forget one thing. That was the little scrap of faded paper which he had written the curious message from his father, which he had clasped in his hand most of the way going to New York, and which were the documents that would probably reveal his right and true lineage.

Many, many times he fondled the key to that vault, which had the number 498 upon its side.

For a long time the car moved on and Brandt showed no sign of wishing to get off. However, at last, at the corner of an obscure street in the residence district, he rose slowly and left the car.

Ned rode on until the next corner, and then he too got off. He turned and started to walk back to the place where Lionel Brandt had been standing on the walk. Before a house half way down the street the cab of Henry Blunt was drawn up.

And as the boy watched, Blunt himself stepped from it, and walked swiftly up the walk, which led to a little gray house. The man did not stop to knock but opened the door, and stood on the threshold a moment. Ned was racing toward the place as fast as he could run, and he heard the gasp of astonishment that came from some one within the house. Then Blunt closed the door.

"Lionel Brandt must be in the house, and he was in trouble. That was all. Ned stopped to think of. He turned the knob. The door was not locked, and opened under his touch.

A strange scene confronted him. Brandt was crouched against the wall with his hands above his head and Henry Blunt was standing in the middle of the room with drawn revolver. All looked at him as he entered.

"Stop!" Blunt commanded. "What do you want?"

"I want you," Ned cried fiercely. "You and your packet."

Slowly the revolver swung around until the muzzle of it pointed directly at Ned's head.

"Put up your hands," the man demanded.

With the movement, Brandt's hand went swiftly to his hip pocket, and instantly the gun covered his again.

"None of that," Blunt said.

All were so interested in what was occurring that nobody heard the door, which led to some other room in the house, swing open. A man stood in the doorway, and that man held a rope in his hand. The rope was coiled.

The man took careful aim, and then he swung the lariat. The noise descended nearly over Blunt's shoulders. The next moment Blunt was jerked to the floor, and his revolver went off harmlessly in the air.

"Not yet, Mr. Blunt," called the man who had thrown the rope. "Not yet do you get ze packet. Zia time you have been outgeneraled, do you see?"

Ned, nearly overcome by the quick turn of events, was dazed by the voice. He stared at his rescuer in amazement. It was M. Edward Follet, the Frenchman.

Odd Marriage.

Two motion picture players, recently married at Texarkana, which is on the state line between Arkansas and Texas, stood one in one state and one in the other while the ceremony was going on, a harmless little publicity scheme which cost them nothing but the price of an extra license, it being necessary to have both Texas and Arkansas sanction for the nuptial.

—but here it is —the ideal car —at the ideal price

Things that were impossible yesterday are today's accomplished facts.

Somewhere in the world someone with special knowledge, special experience, special equipment, gets ready and then startles the world by accomplishing the seemingly impossible.

Almost everyone said that a complete automobile of beautiful design, fine finish, the ideal small, light, economical car, built with quality materials and absolutely completely equipped, could not be built to sell for $615.

And but for Overland special knowledge, special experience and special equipment, it probably would still be one of the impossibilities instead of an accomplished fact.

Probably no other organization in the world can produce the quality and efficiency equal of this car to sell at anywhere near so low a price.

Certain it is that no other organization is doing so.

Mrs. Vertrees' expression had lost none of its anxiety and she shook her head gravely. "My dear, dear child," she said, "it seems to me— it looks— I'm afraid—"

"Say as much of it as you can, mamma," said Mary, encouragingly. "I can get it, if you'll just give me one keyword."

"Everything you say," Mrs. Vertrees began, timidly, "seems to have the air of— it is as if you were seeking to— to make yourself—"

"Oh, I see! You mean I sound as if I were trying to force myself to like him."

"Not exactly, Mary. That wasn't quite what I meant," said Mrs. Vertrees, speaking direct untruth with perfect unconsciousness. "But you said that—that you found the latter part of the evening at young Mrs. Sheridan's uninteresting—"

"And as Mr. James Sheridan was there, and I saw more of him than at dinner, and had a horribly stupid time in spite of that, you think I—"

"Then it was Mary who left the deduction unfinished."

Mrs. Vertrees nodded, and though both the mother and the daughter understood, Mary felt it better to make the understanding definite.

"Well," she asked, gravely, "is there anything else I can do? You and papa don't want me to do anything that distresses me, and so, as this is the only thing to be done, it seems it's up to me not to let it distress me. That's all there is about it, isn't it?"

"But nothing must distress you!" the mother cried.

"That's what I say!" said Mary, cheerfully. "And so it doesn't. It's all right." She rose and took her cloak over her arm, as if to go to her own room. But on the way to the door she stopped, and stood leaning against the foot of the bed, contemplating a threadbare rug at her feet. "Mother, you've told me a thousand times that it doesn't really matter whom a girl marries."

"No, no," Mrs. Vertrees protested. "I never said such a—"

"No, not in words; I mean what you meant. It's true, isn't it, that marriage really is 'not a bed of roses, but a field of battle'?" To get right down to it, a girl could fight it out with anybody, couldn't she? One man as well as another?

"Mary, I can't bear for you to talk like that." And Mrs. Vertrees lifted pleading eyes to her daughter—eyes that begged to be spared. "It sounds—almost reckless!"

Mary caught the appeal, came to her, and kissed her gently. "Never fret, dear! I'm not likely to do anything I don't want to—I've always been too thoroughly-going a little pig."

She gave her mother a final kiss and went gayly all the way to the door this time, pausing for her postscript with her hand on the knob. "Oh, the one that caught me looking in the window, mamma, the youngest one—"

"Did he speak of it?" Mrs. Vertrees asked, apprehensively.

"No. He didn't speak at all, that I saw, to anyone. I didn't meet him. But he isn't insane, I'm sure; or if he is, he has long intervals when he's not. Mr. James Sheridan mentioned that he lived at home when he was 'well enough'; and it may be he's only an invalid. He looks dreadfully ill, but he has pleasant eyes, and it struck me that if one were in the Sheridan family—she laughed a little ruefully—"he might be interesting to talk to sometimes, when there was too much stocks and bonds. I didn't see him after dinner."

"There must be something wrong with him," said Mrs. Vertrees. "They'd have introduced him if there weren't."

"I don't know. His father spoke of sending him back to a machine shop of some sort; I glanced at him just then and he was pathetic-looking enough before that, but the most tragic change came over him. He seemed just to die, right there at the table!"

"Mr. Sheridan must be very unfeeling."

"No," said Mary, thoughtfully. "I don't think he is; but he might be uncomprehending, and certainly he's the kind of man to do anything he once sets out to do. But I wish a dunder been looking at that poor boy just then! I'm afraid I'll keep remembering—"

"I wouldn't," Mrs. Vertrees smiled faintly, and in her smile there was the remotest ghost of a genteel vagueness. "I'd keep my mind on pleasant things, Mary."

Mary laughed and nodded. "Yes, indeed! Plenty pleasant enough, and probably, if all were known, too good—even for me!"

And when she had gone Mrs. Vertrees drew a long breath, as if a burden were off her mind, and, smiling, began to undress in a gentle reverie.

CHAPTER VII.

Edith, glancing casually into the "ready-made" library, stopped abruptly, seeing Bibbs there alone. He was standing before the pearl-framed and gold-lettered poem, musingly inspecting it. He read it:

PUC-ITIVE

I will forget the things that sting:
The lashing look, the barbed word,
I know the very hands that fling
The stones at me I have never stirred
To anger but for their own sakes.
They've suffered so, that's why they strike.

I'll keep my heart among the stars
Where none shall hurt it. Oh, like Those wounded ones I must not be,
For, wounded, I might strike in turn!
So, none shall hurt me. Far and free
Where my heart flies no one shall learn.

"Bibbs!" Edith's voice was angry, and her color deepened suddenly as she came into the room, preceded by a scent of violets much more powerful than that warranted by the actual bunch of them upon the lapel of her coat.

Bibbs did not turn his head, but wagged it solemnly, seeming depressed by the poem. "Pretty young, isn't it?" he said.

"There must have been something about your looks that got the prize, Edith; I can't believe the poem did it."

She glanced hurriedly over her shoulder and spoke sharply, but in a low voice: "I don't think it's very nice of you to bring it up at all, Bibbs. I didn't want them to frame it, and I wish to goodness papa'd quit talking about it; but here, that night, after the dinner, didn't he go and read it aloud to the whole crowd of 'em? I thought I'd die of shame!"

Bibbs looked grieved. "The poem isn't that bad, Edith. You see, you were only seventeen when you wrote it."

"Oh, hush up!" she snapped. "I wish it had burnt my fingers the first time I touched it! Then I might have had sense enough to leave it where it was. I had no business to take it, and I've been ashamed—"

"No, no," he said, comfortingly. "It was the very most dattering thing ever happened to me. It was almost my last light before I went to the machine shop, and it's pleasant to think somebody liked it enough to—"

"But I don't like it!" she exclaimed. "I don't even understand it—and papa made so much fuss over its getting the prize. I just hate it! The truth is I never dreamed it'd get the prize."

"You have to live it down, Edith. Perhaps abroad and under another name you might find—"

"Oh, hush up! I'll hire someone to steal it and burn it the first chance I get." She turned away petulantly, moving to the door. "I'd like to think I could hope to hear the last of it before I die!"

"Edith!" he called, as she went into the hall.

"What's the matter?"

"I want to ask you: Do I really look like that?"

"What's the matter?"

"I want to ask you: Do I really look like that?"

better, or have you just got used to me?"

"What on earth do you mean?" she said, coming back as far as the threshold.

"When I first came you couldn't look at me," Bibbs explained, in his impersonal way. "But I've noticed you look at me lately. I wondered if I'd—"

"It's because you look so much better," she told him, cheerfully. "This month you've been here's done you no end of good. Anybody could look at you now, Bibbs, and not—not get—"

"Slack?"

"Well—almost that!" she laughed. "And you're getting a better color every day, Bibbs; you really are."

"You're really getting along splendidly." "I'm afraid so," he said, ruefully.

"Afraid so! Well, if you aren't the queerest! I suppose you mean father might send you back to the machine shop if you get well enough. I heard him say something about it the night of the—"

"The jingle of a distant bell interrupted her, and she glanced at her watch. "Bobby Lamborn! I'm going to motor him out to look at a place in the country. Afternoon, Bibbs!"

When she had gone, Bibbs moaned pessimistically from shelf to shelf, his eye wandering among the titles of the books. The library consisted almost entirely of handsome "uniform editions." They made an effective decoration for the room, all these big, expensive books, with a glossy binding here and there twinkling a reflection of the flames that crackled in the splendid Gothic fireplace; but Bibbs had an impression that the bookseller who selected them considered them a relief, and that white-jacket considered them a burden of dust, and that nobody else considered them at all. Himself, he disturbed not one.

There came a chime of bells from a clock in another part of the house, and white-jacket appeared beamingly in the doorway, bearing furs. "Awready, Mist' Bibbs," he announced. "You

George turned to Miss Jackson, who had been listening benevolently in the hallway. "Same he aw-ways say, Mist' Jackson—I expect she is! You know, Mist' Jackson, if he git well, 'at young man go 'be pride o' the family, Mist' Jackson. Yes suh, right now I pick 'im fo' firs' money!"

"Look out with all 'at money, George!" Jackson warned the enthusiastic. "White folks 'n 'is house know 'im heap longer 'n you. You the only man battin' on 'im!"

"I risk it!" cried George, merrily. "I put her all on now—ev' cent! 'At boy's go 'be flower o' the flock!"

This singular prophecy, founded somewhat recklessly upon gratitude for the meaning of "lamidal," differed radically from another prediction concerning Bibbs, set forth for the benefit of a fair auditor some twenty minutes later. Jim Sheridan, skirting the edges of the town with Mary Vertrees beside him, in his own swift machine, encountered the invalid upon the highroad.

The two cars were going in opposite directions, and the occupants of Jim's had only a swaying glimpse of Bibbs sitting alone on the back seat—his white face startlingly white against cap and collar of black fur—but he flashed into recognition as Mary bowed to him.

Jim waved his left hand carelessly. "It's Bibbs, taking his constitutional," he explained.

"Yes, I know," said Mary. "I bowed to him, too, though I've never met him. In fact, I've only seen him once—no, twice. I hope he won't think I'm very bold, bowing to him."

"I doubt if he noticed it," said honest Jim.

"Oh, oh!" she cried. "What's the trouble?"

"I'm almost sure people notice it when I bow to them."

"Oh, I see!" said Jim. "Of course they would ordinarily, but Bibbs is funny."

"Is he? How?" she asked. "He strikes me as anything but funny."

"Well, I'm his brother," Jim said, deprecatingly, "but I don't know what he's like, and, to tell the truth, I've never felt exactly like I was his brother, the way I do Roscoe. Nobody could ever get him to do anything; you can't get him to do anything now. He never had any life in him; and honestly, if he is my brother, I must say I believe Bibbs Sheridan is the laziest man God ever made! I hate to say it, but Bibbs Sheridan 'll never amount to anything as long as he lives."

In the hall they passed the Moor, and Bibbs paused before it while white-jacket opened the door with a flourish and waved condescendingly to the chauffeur in the car which stood waiting in the driveway.

"It seems to me I asked you what you thought about this 'statue' when I first came home, George," said Bibbs, thoughtfully. "What did you tell me?"

"Yessuh!" George chuckled, perfectly understanding that for some unknown reason Bibbs enjoyed hearing him repeat his opinion of the Moor. "He and I," he explained, "will make a success of it. I will furnish the experience and he will supply the capital."

"How long do you expect that plan to succeed?" asked the foreman.

"Oh, about five years," was the reply. "By that time I should have the capital and the other fellow the experience."

"Did he explain the game to you?" asked her friend, who also wore white spats.

"How was that?"

"Why, the poor fish got out a pencil and a piece of paper and made a diagram of it."

Children cause care, anxiety and trouble. Surely they do, and a little trouble is good for most people. It takes them out of themselves and moves the self-center. It was David Harum who remarked, "Fleas are good for a dog because they keep him from broodin' on being a dog." The home that never has been entered with a whoop, a yell or a howl is a sad place.

TENSITY OF CRISIS OBSERVED IN EAST

GRAVITY OF SUBMARINE CON-TROVERSY IS FULLY APPRE-CIATED, SAYS USHER.

KEEP WATCH ON SPIES

Nearly One Hundred Germans and Their Confederates Have Been Arrested in Conspiracy Cases.

By Ellis B. Usher.

Milwaukee, May 13.—It happened that it was in Washington for about four weeks, but it was back in New York and New York, and so it was at the interesting moment
when the Kaiser's reply to President Wilson's note was hourly expected, there was opportunity to realize the gravity of the situation. Out here we perceive official circles.

The government has not advertised
these cases and people generally do not appreciate their number. There are now close upon an hundred Germans and their confederates in prison, under bail, and in jail, in New York and New York, and there are
cases elsewhere that have had scarcely any public attention. We hear only of the more prominent ones.

A friend of mine said to me in New York: "We are awfully with you here. We know it. There are thousands of them; and we know, too,
that the government has them all spotted." I said: "I am not a public official but I know, as other private citizens in New York and the east know, of specific instances. The discovery that the German steamships tied to the New Jersey docks
were being used as bomb factories,
is only one of the more glaring violations of the hospitality of this nation. In plain English, it amounts to using this country as a base for
war against the United States."

The strangest thing about this situation is that no condemnation for these open violations of American
law and neutrality has ever come
from the source that is recognized
as German-American centers in this country. It is not, therefore, strange that when congress was flooded with telegrams and letters in the interest
of the people that thus violate our laws and our neutrality, and when
our confidence, the effect was the reverse of that anticipated. It is likely to end in some sort of government
investigation, rather than in respectful attention to such prearranged
feigning work in behalf of a foreign government. Our junior Wisconsin
senator Paul Hastings, had been prepared for such an onslaught, and when

it came he fully understood, and was able to interpret it to other senators
and congressmen, and to the country.

These propagandists, like the spies
and conspirators our government is gradually picking up, are not dangerous, nor are they numerous.
Enough to be a menace. They do not even represent anything like
the entire German blood of America.
They can neither frighten nor affect
presidential candidates, nor anybody
else who is genuinely American.

Perhaps I should say that I really
think that the flood of telegrams
and letters poured upon Washington by German sympathizers has done more to arouse the old American
spirit and unity for the country than anything which has happened within a year. It has been followed by expressions from leading Republicans as well as Independents,
that are unmistakable in tone
and tenor. The telegram campaign
has done more to stop mere political
talk than could have been accomplished by any ordinary and friendly
influence.

Public Backs Wilson.
Wisconsin people have not forgot-
ten, and if the younger ones want verification they need only to refer
to the Blue Books of 1864 and 1865,
or to the fact that there was no Republican party or ticket in this state in 1864
and 1865. Lincoln's name was found only on the "Union" ticket, in 1864, and
in 1865. The "Union" ticket, in 1864,
elected Governor on a "Union" ticket.
Whether or not this patriotic unity
returns again under a Union party is not vital. The same spirit is abroad
and it will animate the voters this year. They will vote overwhelmingly,
to sustain and back up the government of the United States, and
every knock German sympathizer
will be a loser. It is a boost. They should not be discouraged. However little they realize it, they are doing
the Lord's service. I have traveled from Denver to Boston during the last twelve months, and have not
been out of Wisconsin half the time,
and the sentiment of the country is unmistakable. I have been on other business and have not sought for politics. I did not vote for Mr. Wilson, but I am proud of him, and I am proud of him, because he is
patriotic enough to stand by the man
who beat him, and raise his voice,
every time there is a real reason for
the government of the United States,
and the president who represents
that government. Mr. Taft expresses public sentiment, and I would not be sure that he and all Republicans
who have his patriotic vision will not finally vote for Wilson. Many surely will. They include "big business" men, and little business men, and members of the Grand Army of the Republic, and the loyal Legion, as well as everyday workmen, like myself. None of them are talking about the tariff, or the currency, or
the weather. They are for the United States, and are for a Business is Booming.

The business of the country is booming this spring, and all tradesmen and secondary manufacturers are having a hard time to get goods and raw materials fast enough.
Everything save the railroad situation seems to promise great activity.
The railroads are pushing and are working at a disadvantage.
No one with eyes can ride through the country without seeing evidences of the freight blockade everywhere.
Contrary to general impression, this blockade is not due to foreign business. Export business is only about 5 per cent of the business moving. It is due to the lack of terminal facilities, trucking, and rolling stock, and that is due to the inability of the railroads, in recent years, to borrow money at reasonable rates, which to keep up their necessary expenses, and to pay for the increasing traffic of the country. I heard stories in the east of some of the great railroads destroying freight lines, at auction, and doing equally desperate things to cars and send them to the scrap heap. It must be disheartening to railroad operators to face a general strike proposition, and to realize that despite the glut of business, 1915 showed losses in volume of both freight and passenger traffic. Not only that, but 1915 showed smaller earnings than 1914, it is very evident that the railroad situation in this country is serious. Many of the leading railroad operators are beginning to look forward to the coming ownership as inevitable. One of my Chicago friends says he don't want his son to follow him and learn railroading, because the calling has no future. People who believe, as I do, that public ownership, even if not free, which I don't, would menace freedom, may face this prospect in all seriousness.

The lake and rail situation is taking on an aspect that was not unfamiliar to people who were informed.
The traffic manager of the Milwaukee
Chamber of Commerce has just entered complaint to the Interstate Commerce Commission that the Great Lakes Transit company, "Pine-River" Connor's corporation, has declined to stand the charges of delivery of freight to the docks, which has heretofore been customary, when the boats were owned by the railroads. One reason the boats are all independent and are many of them
cutting out Milwaukee and Lake Michigan ports almost entirely is that they can get all the business
they can jump to and at high prices,
by going into the Duluth trade, Grain,
ore, coal and the big bulk freights
are more profitable than package traffic.

Individual Gridiron Stars.
Jim Thorpe was touted by a local paper as having played the greatest game of football of any individual player the game has ever known.
He did play a wonderful game. Considering the fact that he played on a losing team, scoring all its points, his performance was phenomenal. But John E. De Witt, Princeton in 1904, beat Yale single-handed. And Yale in those days was not the decrepit old man in football that she has been of late years. Ted Coy in 1910, likewise turned the table on Princeton, reversing a 10-0 score in the second half, 11-10 in favor of Yale. Tom Shevlin also has a claim to the greatest football player of all time, as has Charley Buckley, of Slickton, or Rockcress, or Canyon, or Marquette, or —but what's the use? Like picking an all-American team, the selection of the world's greatest football player is impossible.

Travelling on the Erie.
In taking my trip east I traveled over the Erie, of course, and I found that the interim of over two years, since my last visit, had been marked by very marked improvement. I knew this to be so, I have been writing about it all the time, but it makes a different impression when one actually visualizes miles and miles of rock-blasted double track that are as straight as a plumb line and over which a steel train runs as smoothly as over the best tracks between Milwaukee and Chicago. The side-tracks and yards, all the way, showed the press of traffic, but the Erie has had generalship and beaten other trunk lines, by holding the great press of traffic back, so its terminals did not get choked beyond any movement at all. Barring the four hours slower time, which is offset by lower fares, the Erie passenger service is as good as anybody needs.
The trains are material all side and the dining cars give excellent service at reasonable prices. Going east the best train leaves Chicago at 11 a. m., and lands one in New York at 4:06 the next afternoon. In time to get a good dinner and a night's rest "on shore"
before going to business. The fastest trains do little better for they land one in New York so the business day is practically over for the day. That is the command appointments out of business hours. The Erie is climbing fast these days toward the front rank among trunk lines. The traffic figures all speak the fact and the Erie must be the success is due to system, modern economies of operation and careful attention to its customers.

and where they own a fine home in a good location.
In my visit with Orrin Hollis he said: "Dave, I am the owner of the largest scrap book in the business. I commenced more than forty years ago cutting out interesting articles that appeared in newspapers about different ones in the business, and several times during the winter read this old book through time and again.
I wish who run across his name on the West side in Chicago only a few weeks ago."

Another old time rider that I met was "Sticks" Davenport, who commenced his career in the business in the late '70s. He was a "Sticks" show man and was some 8 or 9 years of age, and rode two Shetland ponies. While "Sticks" has been in the business continuously since that time, he has been a bareback rider of note, traveling with all the best shows of the country. I never saw anyone that carries his age like he does. He has the same childish face and smile that he had when he was a youngster, and said to him: "Sticks, stick to that face and you never will grow old."
He is the son of the late John Davenport, who passed away in his home on the West side in Chicago only a few weeks ago.

I also had a long and interesting visit with Joseph T. Condon, who has been in the business for some years
and whose home is in Indianapolis, Ind. Mr. Condon is the legal adjuster with the show. He is a pleasant gentleman to meet, and one who is always willing to go a little more than half way to make a satisfactory settlement.

My visit with my old friends on Saturday last was to me like a homecoming, or a family reunion after years of separation. As the ranks of my old friends are thinned out year after year, it is this that makes the bond of friendship closer.

I received a letter from my old friend, Orrin Hollis, with the routing card of the show for thirty days ahead, in which he said that the first three days after leaving Janesville the weather was beautiful and the business big.

After spending three days in the preliminary rehearsals, the Sells-Floto Champion Show gave their first performance last season last Saturday, with everything moving as if it had been enroute all not season and not like an opening day. The morning was threatening and promised to be cold and wet, but the threatening aspect of the weather did not influence the people of Wichita and surrounding country. This is the third consecutive season for Sells-Floto in Wichita, and instead of wearing the welcome out, business has improved with each visit. It would have been impossible to squeeze another soul

into a seat at the matinee, and the night was capacity.
The Sells-Floto left Denver Sunday,
April 23, at 4 p. m., in two sections, arriving at Wichita at 11 a. m. on Tuesday. One of the first stops was made at La Junta, Col. The stock stood the long run in fine shape; but this circus is noted for its fine stock,
and three weeks before the departure for Denver a conical of dapple grays arrived from Armour & Co., all perfectly matched, the Armour & Co.
buyer having been engaged since Jan-1 in selecting the carload. Most of the performers must Kansas laws regulate the performance of circus acts.
Wichita, two special cars bringing them from Chicago and eastern points.

Both performances on the opening day were full of pep, which kept the enthusiasm of the audience up to the highest pitch. Every number was cordially received. Roseland's somersault from horse to horse made the audience gasp. When Gotsch's show and Jones were introduced they were received with salvos of applause, and Jess Willard, quiet, modest Hercules, created a furore when he stepped on the platform. Owing to the fact that the audience up to the highest pitch, he was not permitted to give an exhibition bout with his sparring partner, but his demonstration of training exercises fully satisfied
the people.

Jumbo, Barnum & Bailey's prize elephant, was put to death in the winter quarter of 1915. Barnum & Ba-

She had developed paralysis, and it was thought that to put her to death was humane. It required, so it is said, twenty men to tie the animal.

UNDoubtedly.
Sister Evelyn, I don't like the way
young David lean over the front gate

great deal to be said on both sides.

do not have the near-to contact with the deep seriousness of present day public business that makes the full intensity of such a situation. We do not, because we are not compelled to feel the full force of a condition that may any day mean a break with Germany, and that has more than one acute angle. It was well understood in the highest official circles a week ago that if Germany failed to meet the demand of this government for cessation of submarine warfare and cessation of neutral trade, there is in the papers taken with von Ige in New York a trail that leads so straight to Germany's door that, in itself, it might offer full justification for the German embargo, and his passports. The von Ige case is going the course of the courts, and it will be valuable to those who want information to follow it closely. It was told that no arrest of German conspirators have been made without very full and careful preparation for a perfect case, and that so far convictions have followed indictments with unfailing certainty.

Hundred Arrests Made.
The government has not advertised
these cases and people generally do
not appreciate their number. There
are now close upon an hundred Germans and their confederates in
prison, under bail, and in jail, in New York and New York, and there are
cases elsewhere that have had scarcely any public attention. We hear only of the more prominent ones.

A friend of mine said to me in New York: "We are awfully with you
here. We know it. There are thousands of them; and we know, too,
that the government has them all
spotted." I said: "I am not a public official but I know, as other private citizens in New York and the east know, of specific instances. The discovery that the German steam-
ships tied to the New Jersey docks
were being used as bomb factories,
is only one of the more glaring violations of the hospitality of this nation. In plain English, it amounts
to using this country as a base for
war against the United States."

The strangest thing about this situation is that no condemnation for
these open violations of American
law and neutrality has ever come
from the source that is recognized
as German-American centers in this country. It is not, therefore, strange
that when congress was flooded with
telegrams and letters in the interest
of the people that thus violate our
laws and our neutrality, and when
our confidence, the effect was the reverse of that anticipated. It is likely to end in some sort of government
investigation, rather than in respectful attention to such prearranged
feigning work in behalf of a foreign
government. Our junior Wisconsin
senator Paul Hastings, had been prepared for such an onslaught, and when

it came he fully understood, and was able to interpret it to other senators
and congressmen, and to the country.

These propagandists, like the spies
and conspirators our government is
gradually picking up, are not dangerous, nor are they numerous.
Enough to be a menace. They do
not even represent anything like
the entire German blood of America.
They can neither frighten nor affect
presidential candidates, nor anybody
else who is genuinely American.

Perhaps I should say that I really
think that the flood of telegrams
and letters poured upon Washington by German sympathizers has
done more to arouse the old American
spirit and unity for the country than
anything which has happened within
a year. It has been followed by expressions from leading Republicans as well as Independents,
that are unmistakable in tone
and tenor. The telegram campaign
has done more to stop mere political
talk than could have been accomplished by any ordinary and friendly
influence.

Public Backs Wilson.
Wisconsin people have not forgot-
ten, and if the younger ones want
verification they need only to refer
to the Blue Books of 1864 and 1865,
or to the fact that there was no Republi-
can party or ticket in this state in 1864
and 1865. Lincoln's name was found only
on the "Union" ticket, in 1864, and
in 1865. The "Union" ticket, in 1864,
elected Governor on a "Union" ticket.
Whether or not this patriotic unity
returns again under a Union party is
not vital. The same spirit is abroad
and it will animate the voters this
year. They will vote overwhelmingly,
to sustain and back up the government of the United States, and
every knock German sympathizer
will be a loser. It is a boost. They should not be discouraged. However
little they realize it, they are doing
the Lord's service. I have traveled
from Denver to Boston during the
last twelve months, and have not
been out of Wisconsin half the time,
and the sentiment of the country is unmistakable. I have been on other
business and have not sought for politics. I did not vote for Mr. Wilson, but I am proud of him, and I
am proud of him, because he is
patriotic enough to stand by the man
who beat him, and raise his voice,
every time there is a real reason for
the government of the United States,
and the president who represents
that government. Mr. Taft expresses public sentiment, and I would not be
sure that he and all Republicans
who have his patriotic vision will not
finally vote for Wilson. Many surely
will. They include "big business"
men, and little business men, and
members of the Grand Army of the Republic, and the loyal Legion, as
well as everyday workmen, like
myself. None of them are talking about the tariff, or the currency, or
the weather. They are for the United States, and are for a
no divided interest or dual allegiance.

CARDINAL LINE-UP ANNOUNCED FOR GAME WITH MONROE SUNDAY

Team of Hitters Collected for Opening Game With Monroe Pirates at Association Park Diamond.

HERE'S THE CARDINAL LINE-UP.

Pitchers—Fleming, Ruth and English.
Catchers—Silverthorn and Olson.
First Base—Boose.
Second Base—Denny Blake.
Shortstop—Ripley.
Third Base—Phillips.
Left Field—"Push" Miller.
Center Field—Miller.
Right Field—Chamberlain.

With that line-up in the field, the new Cardinals hope enough to win from the Monroe Pirates. When these two teams answer the call of "Play ball" at the Association park Sunday afternoon, Monroe will be represented by a delegation of auto racers, who expect to see the Pirates triumph over the Cardinals.

Ruth is a crack right-hander from Pennsylvania, and with English will be the twirling after being a long time hurling ability. Both Ruth and English have had league experience, and English was with the Federals for a year.

The infield. Silverthorn will probably start catching Fleming, Olson, the other catcher, is a former Rockford leaguer and is rated as a clean-up hitter. Boose, at first, is also from Pennsylvania, and will have signed with the Fort Worth team for the season, but a disagreement over a contract left him idle, and he was grabbed for the Cardinals. Blake is a chinch for second and will head the Cardinal crew. If "Denny" has lost none of his fielding and sticking ability, displayed last year, the Cardinals fans will be well satisfied. Phillips and Ripley, at third and short, are former Beloit players. Since Ripley was obtained, "Push" Miller was relegated to the outfield from the shortfield, but Miller will have ample opportunity of showing his speed in the outer garden. The Miller number two is from an Indiana club and is a dangerous hitter. Chamberlain is the left-handed utility pitcher and played good ball with the Cardinals last year. The players on this line-up should show some hitting strength. That is what the team needs, for if Ruth and English show the brand of pitching that is expected from them, the Cardinals can display some classy support.

A Chicago umpire will be obtained to officiate, and no one knows who it is going to be at the present time. Providing that the weather man smiles tomorrow and behaves himself, Janesville will welcome a good baseball game, and be ready to boost the Cardinals to the next games, with special attention to the proposed series with the Beloit Fairies.

Moore has two pitchers coming here, Franks and Bongi. Nothing is known about Bongi, but Franks is a stemwinder of a left-hander. Yoss is their catcher.

COFFEE AND ICE CREAM WILL BE ALLOWED ON THE INDIANA TRAINING MENU

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE] Bloomington, Ind., May 13.—Coffee and ice cream will be allowed only one week to the members of the Indiana University's football squad next fall, according to an announcement made by Coach Ewald O. (Jumbo) Stehm in an address to the spring football squad. The coach gave a sample menu for the next games, which will be at the present time. It included: Breakfast, fruit, cereal, bread, butter and milk; Lunch, chops, baked potatoes, lettuce, bread and butter, milk or tea; Dinner, roast vegetable, lettuce, or watercress, bread and butter, bread pudding and milk. To break the monotony Coach Stehm said he would permit the players to have ice cream on Saturday night and coffee for Sunday morning breakfast.

LAKE SHORE LEAGUES START THEIR SCHEDULE.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE] Sheboygan, Wis., May 13.—The Lake Shore league, after passing through a stormy period of organization, was set for the opening of the championship race on Sunday. The Sheboygan will take on Two Rivers tomorrow. Manitowoc will play the Poles in Milwaukee and the White Sox of Milwaukee will be at East Troy.

Twenty-four games will be played according to the schedule. There are twenty-two Sunday dates and the remainder will be played on holidays. The only change in the circuit from last year was the dropping of Waukegan and taking on of Sheboygan.

MORRIS MILLER

Tom Andrews of Milwaukee hasn't always been a promoter of boxing contests, but ever since his entry into the game in the capacity he has been credited with going through with whatever he has started. There have been times when some of the bouts he promoted didn't yield him a profit. In fact, some of the biggest losses in rank failure to the Andrews purse, chiefly because he gave big guarantees to the talent that he engaged.

There have been a few folks identified with the sport who have branded Andrews with the sign of "folishness" for making his matches, but that was before the Brewery City promoter pulled off his biggest financial coup, the gate of drawing $35,000 through the gate for the battle between Willie Ritchie, then lightweight champion, and Adolphe, a former titleholder. That was the biggest day he has realized in rank failure to the Andrews purse, chiefly because he gave big guarantees to the talent that he engaged.

Arthur Duffey, ex-champion sprinter, says "Johnny Overton of Yale seems to have either the mile or the two-mile race at his mercy in the intercollegiate track and field sports to be decided at Harvard stadium May 26 and 27. If Overton can keep up the pace he showed during the indoor season, it is hard to figure how any of the other collegians can beat him. If the Blue crack should not elect to start in the two-mile, there is no way why he should not be heard from in the mile as well as the half. John Paul Jones was able to do such a stunt back in 1913, and there seems to be no reason why Overton shouldn't be able to do likewise.

Unless there is a great change in the pitching of the Red Sox, that team is not going to cut much figure in the present race. Even if its pitching would be of the best it cannot win without high-class pitching, and realizing this fact Manager Carrigan is looking high and low for pitchers and it is not likely that Joe Wood will be given an increase in salary to report to the Sox. He may be able to win some games. Though his arm is not thought to be improved, he would be expected to win games by his knowledge of pitching, which does more to fool batters than speed or curves. Wood wants to get back in the game because he is threatened with the minors, and he is willing to make good on his word to get back into harness at lower salary than he received last season.

When George Hildebrand broke into the American league back in 1913, Bill Evans was assigned the task of tutoring him in the ins and outs of big league arbiting. They worked together for six weeks and then Evans was a very apt pupil. Later in the same year Billy and George were assigned to "double up" in nine games. That was about in mid-season. Since that time, however, they had not worked together until Monday at league park. President Ban Johnson's scheduling of umpires surely is a strange procedure when it keeps two of them from working together for almost three full seasons.

Slightly employed of the John Wamann company of Philadelphia, operator of one of the largest department stores in the world, will do the training hereafter on the roof of the massive store building. A regulation sprinting track has been laid out and the sprinters stage a race during the noon hour and after the day's work is done.

TOWN LINE

Town Line, May 12.—Last evening at 8:30 o'clock at the home of Mr. and Mrs. L. C. Walters, town of Beloit, a pretty home wedding took place when the marriage of their daughter, Miss Jessie Grace, to John Howard Lentell, Jr., was solemnized. Preceding the ceremony, which was performed by the Rev. G. E. Lockie, pastor of the Baptist church of Beloit, the Misses Hazel and Luella and Master Eddy Walters, sisters and brother of the bride, sang "A Perfect Day" in a delightful manner. The ceremony was witnessed by only the immediate families of the contracting couple. The bride was prettily dressed in white, smocked voile trimmed with white satin and wore a corsage bouquet of lilies of the valley. The house was beautifully decorated with apple blossoms, violets, heartsease and potted plants, before a bank of which the bride party stood during the ceremony. The supper was served after the congratulations and the young people had been showered with rice. Mr. and Mrs. Lentell left last evening for their home, at 817 Forest avenue, Beloit, where they were met by the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Walters and has grown up in the neighborhood, where she has many friends. To the Women Who Long for New Homes The Gazette Presents a New Feature in "Isometric" Floor Plans of "Homes of Character."

How often you, like so many others, have said, "Oh, if I could only see the really inside of a house built on these plans!" You've had a hazy idea of how the floor plans of so many houses might appear, but you've longed to look right down into the house itself—to know just how the arrangement would seem. And here we present to Gazette readers the first "isometric" plans that have ever been shown, and which give you clearly the location of partitions, doors, windows, stairways, etc., just as though you looked down into the various rooms. Study the new "isometric" plans carefully—you'll find yourself planning to place a bed here, a dresser there, a table near that window and a couch there, etc. PLAN—Size 24x27 feet. Basement under entire house. No attic. EXTERIOR.—Ordinary lap siding, wide siding or shingles, painted white. Roof in shingles, stained green. Chimney, red brick. INTERIOR.—White enamel throughout would be most in keeping with the exterior, but oak for living room and dining room, with yellow pine for kitchen and second floor could be used.

IN THE ENTRANCE HALL OF YOUR NEW HOME

The lighting effect should be soft and subdued, as the eye cannot at once accustom itself to great brilliance when coming in from the outside darkness.

The most popular lights are the gas lantern (ornamental design) and the semi-indirect gas light.

For elaborate and decorative treatments wall brackets are often used.
